H.M.S. ARETHUSA WRECKED BY A MINE

London, Feb. 14.—The British cruiser Arethusa has been wrecked by a mine. At least ten of the crew were killed.

The news was announced this afternoon by the Admiralty.

The Arethusa was one of the warships roughly handled in the Dardanelles campaign. The cruiser was 450 feet long, had a tonnage of 3,520, mounted two six-inch and six four-inch guns and had a crew of about 400.

BRITISH WILL NOT DISARM LINERS

By SYDNEY B. CAVE.
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

London, Feb. 14.—England will reject proposals made by the United States that merchant vessels be disarmed. In taking this action Great Britain will have the backing of all the entente powers. This has been determined by informal preliminary conferences held by Sir Edward Grey with representatives of the allies in London, and formal affirmation of the decision will be made at a great war council to be held in Paris in the near future.

The British government will never abandon the position that it has taken that the sinking of merchant vessels without warning, even if the ships attacked carry guns for their own defence, is contrary to the principles of civilized warfare.

Even if the United States should accept the doctrine set forth in Germany and Austria's announcement that armed merchant vessels shall be torpedoed without warning, England and her allies will not waver in their determination to class as pirates all Teutonic crews that obey the orders

PRESIDENT OPENLY IN FIELD

Wilson Consents That His Name Go on Ohio Ballot, Though Not Wishing to Contest with Others

By International News Service.

Washington, Feb. 14.—In a letter to Charles Q. Hildebrand, Secretary of State of Ohio, President Wilson today authorized the use of his name on the Ohio ballots as a presidential candidate to succeed himself.

In his letter the President states he is unwilling to enter into any contest for the Democratic nomination for President. He adds, however, that as the Ohio statutes expressly stipulate that the consent of a man must be obtained before his name can be placed on the ballots, he will consent to the use of his name.

Following is the text of the letter given out at the White House:

The Hon. Charles Q. Hildebrand,
Secretary of State, Columbus, O.:

My Dear Sir—I am enclosing a letter the occasion of which I daresay will be quite obvious. Friends in Ohio have called my attention to Section 4954 of the General Code of Ohio as amended in 1914, with regard to primary elections, and have requested that I indicate my willingness to have my name used. I accordingly take the liberty of sending you the enclosed letter as formal permission under the statutes. Very truly yours, WOODROW WILSON.

The enclosed letter was as follows:

The Hon. Charles Q. Hildebrand,
Secretary of State, Columbus, O.:

My Dear Sir—While I am entirely unwilling to enter into any contest for the presidential nomination of the Democratic party, I am willing to permit the use of my name that the Democrats in Ohio may make known their preference in regard to that nomination.

In order, therefore, to satisfy the technical requirements of the statutes of the State of Ohio, I hereby consent to the use of my name as a candidate for the presidency by any candidate who seeks to be elected a delegate to the national Democratic convention which is to assemble in June next.

Very respectfully yours,
WOODROW WILSON.

THREATEN EMILY BURGER

Providence, Feb. 14.—Miss Emily Burger, "the other woman" in the Mohr case, who was seriously wounded when Dr. C. Franklin Mohr was ambushed and killed, has received two threatening letters so serious that she turned them over to the Attorney-General's office today, with an appeal for protection.

Both letters were written, apparently, by the same person. One, postmarked Brockton, was received Wednesday. The second, postmarked Philadelphia, was received Saturday. Neither was signed, nor did the handwriting in either seem to be disguised. Both letters were similar in ideas and phrasing. The Brockton letter reads:

"To Miss Burger:—

"You need not think that you are so much just because you received love letters from Dr.

SCHOOL TEACHER AT ENFIELD A SUICIDE

Springfield, Feb. 14.—Miss Ada L. Harwood, aged forty, a teacher in the Enfield public schools for twenty years, committed suicide by shooting herself at her home last night. She had not been in good health for some time. She used a 32-calibre revolver, the bullet entering the right temple and killing her instantly.

TRAGEDY LIKE CASE OF AVIS LINNELL

Mother of Victim Pleads for Release of Accused Student; Wide Search for Poison Sale Record

Chicago detectives began a systematic tour of the drug stores of that city today in an effort to prove that the poison which killed eighteen-year-old Marian F. Lambert, the high school girl found dead in the woods of Lake Forest, a fashionable Chicago suburb, was bought by William H. Orpet, University of Wisconsin student and native of Lancaster in this State, who has admitted having jilted the girl after blasting her life.

The girl was found dead under circumstances which parallel the murder of Avis Linnell of Hyannis by Clarence V. T. Richeson.

The detectives looking for a poison sale to Orpet took photographs of the young man with them.

It was definitely determined that the poison responsible for the tragedy was prussic acid, dissolved in some liquid.

MOTHER ASKS RELEASE.

Two other developments in the case today were:

Mrs. Lambert, the dead girl's mother, pleaded with State's Attorney Dady to set Orpet free and not prosecute him.

Marian Lambert's mother, however, failed in her plea to State's Attorney Dady that the charge of murder against her dead daughter's lover be erased.

"Regardless of Mrs. Lambert's request the prosecution is going ahead," declared Dady. "We have a strong case against Orpet. He has not explained everything. On some vital points he stubbornly refuses to talk.

"But I believe we have enough evidence to convict him. Not the least of this is the alibi he framed up before he went to meet the girl."

Orpet, in the jail at Waukegan, heard the news complacently. Interviews with him were forbidden, but one remarkable statement leaked from the walls of the jail.

"The girl was to blame as much as I was," said Orpet. He also declared he never loved her.

POISON SO FAR UNTRACED.

A search of the drug stores in Madison, Wis., to determine whether Orpet bought poison there apparently has failed. No drug store proprietor or clerk was found who could identify the pictures of Orpet as the purchaser of any poison.

The authorities have in their possession sixty letters exchanged by Miss Lambert and Orpet. They disclose the stages of their romance from the time it began in the Deerfield high school to the time when Orpet expressed a desire to throw over Miss Lambert, on account of his engagement to Miss Celestia Youker of De Kalb, Ill., and the letter arranging the secret meeting of Orpet and the girl in the woods where she died.

Over the telephone Mrs. Lambert pleaded with State's Attorney Dady to set Orpet free.

"No punishment the law may inflict can give me back my Marian," she said. "I want no vengeance, even if he is guilty, and I cannot believe he is. I have only sympathy in my heart for Mrs. Orpet, Will's mother. Her trial is far more cruel than mine."

The letter that jilted Miss Lambert

Dorothy Dix Draws Moral from Tragedy

By DOROTHY DIX.

When will girls learn that for women always the wages of sin is death?

When will mothers learn to teach their daughters this age-old truth, and impress upon them the fact that while a man sometimes escapes paying the price for his wrong doing, a woman never does?

Never a newspaper do you pick up but somewhere in the grist of its news of the day is the tragedy of some woman who has come to disaster because she was so ignorant, so stupid or so reckless that she thought that she could break the rule of right living without suffering its penalty. But she never does. The immutable law stands, and so fate goes on auditing the accounts of the weak and the foolish with the red pencil of shame.

An illustration of the hard and bitter fact that the wages of sin is death that is peculiarly pitiful, because both of the sinners were so [illegible] Forest, a pretty suburb of Chicago.

of a little high school girl. Marion Frances Lambert, who was only 15 eighteen.

THE OLD, OLD STORY.

For a while these children fancied themselves in love, and they sinned the sin of youth, for which nature and society make the woman pay and with all that she has, or ever hopes to have.

Then the boy went off to school to the University of Wisconsin, which he entered as a junior. Also he forgot his little girl sweetheart of the summer months and became engaged to marry a grown-up young lady, who was an instructor in chemistry at the DeKalb Normal College.

Little Marion Frances Lambert stayed at home, at first to mourn her sweetheart's absence and write him long daily school girlly letters. Then something came to her that had no place in the school girl thoughts of any school girl. The great fear of woman came upon her—and she only a child herself.

Not the happy fear of the woman who knows that when she goes down into the Valley of the Shadow she will go with her hand clasped in her husband's, and bring up from the depths a much wanted little child. But the black fear of the unwed mother whose only companion on the cruel journey is shame and disgrace.

Little Marion wrote wild, hysterical, appealing, beseeching letters to the boy, and it is claimed that he sent her medicine to take. And at that, in answer to her frantic appeals,

THE MORAL LESSON FOR GIRLS

It is a case like this that should be a lamp to guide the feet of every girl who reads about the fate of poor little Marian Frances Lambert. It should teach her that all the powers in the world—religion, society, convention, NATURE—are all banded together to make the woman who sins pay, and that she never escapes settling her score with one or the other, or all of them. It should teach girls that the man who asks a woman to trust him with her honor proves by that very act how untrustworthy he is, and how little he loves her, for the man who loves a woman would die to protect her good name.

STUDENT IS HELD IN POISON MYSTERY

to the death tryst in the woods last Wednesday morning was made public today. It reads:

Dear Marian—Joe has told me that you've been pretty sick. Just got word yesterday, hence the delay. I hope that everything is all right now and that you will soon be up and around. I'll try to see you, probably the 9th of February, and will call on you the evening of the 8th. Remember the same. It will be under the same conditions as last time. Remember. If everything is not all right by the time I see you, you will then leave it to me. What has happened since I saw you is encouraging, although you may not know it. I'll explain when I see you. Above all keep quiet and everything will be all right.

I don't like to write any more. You know why. I guess, but remember what I told you. Also don't tell any one about the eighth, for I am not supposed to come home then. Remember. Sincerely, BILL.

It is in this letter that the authorities think they have developed the motive for Miss Lambert's death. They are working on the theory that Orpet bought the poison, or obtained it in the chemical laboratory of the university where he is a junior, or somewhere else, and gave it to Miss Lambert, repeating to her that it would prevent the approaching motherhood that she feared.

Believing that these letters, Miss Lambert's condition, Orpet's engagement with Miss Youker, and the arrangement for the fatal tryst in the woods, made a sufficient connection between Orpet and Miss Lambert's death, Orpet was arrested, although the police had been unable, in spite of the most diligent search, to discover any sale to Orpet of the poison which killed Miss Lambert. Without establishing such a connection between Orpet and a poison, the State's attorney declared today, that it would be difficult to show that Miss Lambert's death was not suicide.

Just as in the case against Clarence V. T. Richeson, the poison sale was the most difficult and the last step before fastening any charge to him, so with the investigation which Chicago police renewed today.

HINT AT SUICIDE.

One theory that was advanced was that Miss Lambert was perhaps tricked into a one-sided "suicide agreement" but that she took poison crystals, while the other took only crystals of plain sugar. This theory was advanced on account of the discovery of sugar crystals in Orpet's pockets.

Although under arrest, Orpet maintains that he is innocent. The young university student talked freely today about all phases of the case and did not evade or refuse any questions put to him except about mailing the incriminating letters and the exact time and place data about the movements Tuesday and Wednesday.

Orpet appeared to be more concerned about his mother, and her relief in his innocence than in his own fate.

He acknowledged that he made a mistake in trying to conceal his tryst with Marian Lambert and to establish an alibi. He said if he had to do the whole thing over again he would act differently.

"I would be straight and honest in everything," he said.

"NEVER LOVED GIRL."

The most remarkable statement made by Orpet was that he never was in love with Miss Lambert, never made love to her, and never gave her to understand that he loved her, although they maintained intimate relations for more than a year.

He said he had never promised to marry her and had no idea that she expected him to marry her, even after she had told him of her condition.

Orpet occupies a cell in the top tier of the jail with three other men, all under thirty years, held for minor offenses. He did not seem to be embarrassed by the presence of other prisoners while he was telling his story—the story of the most intimate chapters of his life.

Orpet appeared nervous from the lack of sleep. He has been almost constantly on the move or under investigation since he was arrested at Madison, Wis., Thursday. He has had long periods of questioning. He was cheerful, however, and met his visitors with a friendly smile.

"Have you seen my folks?" was his first question. His anxiety about their welfare was apparent.

"Yes," he was told. "How are they?" asked Orpet.

"They seem to be all right."

"What do they think?"

"They are sure that you are innocent of the crime of murder."

"I am glad of that," he said with a sigh of relief. "How does my mother look? You know I have not seen her since the Christmas holidays?"

MET GIRL AT SCHOOL.

"Will you tell me about this affair with Marian Lambert, just how it happened from the beginning?"

"I'll tell all there is to tell. I am innocent of any crime in connection with her death and there is no reason why I should not talk freely. I'll start right from the beginning.

"I am twenty years old. I have lived in Lake Forest all my life. I first met Marian Lambert at the Deerfield High School in Highland Park in 1913. I was a senior and she was a freshman. That was merely an acquaintanceship. We sometimes took the same car to and from school, as we both lived in Lake Forest.

"It was while I was home on my vacation last summer that we grew to be close friends. That was about in June. In July and until September I she was at the Association House on West North avenue, and I called there to see her several times. We were never more than friends. I never told her that I loved her and never did this."

"Do you suppose she thought you loved her and would propose marriage later?"

"She should not have, but presumably she did. I took her out several times but quite evidently between us were intimate there was never any real love existing, as far as I knew. We were good friends.

"I liked her and told her that much. I don't think it shows anything that I would like to see together. It was like other boys and girls. The girl was to blame as much as I was.

"While I was away at school we corresponded, and although our letters were of an intimate nature they could not be misconstrued for love letters. I never had anything against her. I simply did not consider our relationship in a serious light.

ADMITS APPOINTMENT.

"I had no reason to wish for the death of Marian and I am absolutely innocent of any part in her death. She wrote to me and told me she thought she was in trouble and that she was despondent. I tried to do all I could for her under the circumstances, and it was to see if I could aid her that I made the appointment with her and met her.

"I thought that it would be a good thing to establish an alibi. I did not think we should be seen together while she was in trouble. I realize now that it was the most foolish thing I could have done. If I had to do the whole thing all over again I would act differently. I would be straight and honest in everything.

"As far as there being any suicide pact between us that is untrue and ridiculous. I did not have the least idea that suicide was even thought of by her. I did not take it as seriously as that."

One of the most important witnesses in the police case in connection with the death of Miss Lambert, is Miss Josephine Davis, Marian Lambert's most intimate girl chum. Miss Davis was the last person except Orpet, to see Miss Lambert alive. She spent with her chum the entire night preceding the fatal Lake Forest tryst.

Miss Davis told today for the first time what she knew of the relations between Miss Lambert and Orpet, and of the meeting in Helm's woods from which Marian never returned alive.

Miss Davis has kept silent before because she valued her friend's reputation as a thing too sacred to be publicly discussed, even though publicity must aid in solving the mystery.

Miss Davis talked with State's Attorney Dady today and later was interviewed by an International News Service reporter.

She is to leave the Lambert home for the first time today since the body of Marian was found in the woods. She declares she will say no more about the case unless she is brought into court as a witness.

TOLD ALL TO POLICE.

"Did you have a talk with State Attorney Dady today?" Miss Davis was asked.

"Yes."

"Did he ask you anything about the relationship between Orpet and Miss Lambert?"

"Yes, and I told him all that I knew. I do not wish it to be made public. I knew that Marian was in trouble on account of Orpet."

"Did you know Orpet was going to meet her Wednesday?"

"Yes, but I did not know specifically why they were to meet. I knew they were going to meet and I talked it over with Marian after she got the letter from Orpet. We discussed the letter a little bit."

"Are you sure that Marian was worried about her meeting with Orpet?"

"Yes, I am."

"Why didn't you say anything about it before?"

"Because I felt a loyalty to Marian. I did not want things to become known."

Parallel in Chicago Case to Avis Linnell Tragedy

By International News Service.

Chicago, Feb. 14.—The case which the authorities have worked up against William H. Orpet, held for the murder of Marie Frances Lambert, the eighteen-year-old Lake Forest High School girl, is a striking parallel to the evidence that sent the Rev. Clarence V. T. Richeson of Boston to death in the electric chair for the murder of Avis Linnell, a pretty young choir singer.

Orpet is younger than Richeson and is not in clerical orders. Miss Lambert was younger than Avis Linnell and lived at home instead of away from her parents in a big city. But, otherwise, if Orpet is guilty as charged, the two cases afford probably the closest and strongest parallel in the history of crime.

The case of Clarence V. T. Richeson, clergyman, and Avis Linnell, choir singer:

Clarence Virgil Thompson Richeson was a young clergyman, recently admitted to orders, when he first met Avis Linnell, the pretty young choir singer, in a small village in Massachusetts. Miss Linnell's whole life had been associated with the church, from the infant class in Sunday school through to a singer in the choir, an active member of the church organization and an ardent worker for the church. She was attracted by the young minister and they soon became friends, and then sweethearts.

After a brief courtship Richeson was given a charge in a suburb of Boston. He had promised to marry Miss Linnell, and in order to be near her the young woman went to Boston as a student at the Conservatory of Music and lived at the Y. W. C. A.

She was happy there and her girl friends knew that she was looking forward to an early marriage. Whenever she received a telephone call and turned away with a smiling face the girls knew that Avis was to meet "her friend," as she always referred to Richeson, and her housemates knew that the friend was the Rev. Mr. Richeson, the man Avis expected to marry.

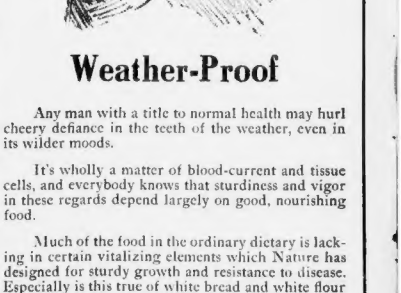
AVIS IN THE WAY.

Richeson's horizon widened when he took the church in Cambridge, and in the course of his church work he met Miss Violet Edwards, an aristocratic and very wealthy young woman. He made suit to her and was accepting as her fiance with the approval of her parents.

Avis Linnell stood in the way of Richeson's marriage into wealth and social life far above anything he had ever aspired to in his young career. It would have been simple enough to jilt Miss Linnell, but she had a claim upon him that was good in the eyes of God, man and the law. He had betrayed her under the promise of an early marriage. If that condition could be obviated, the jilting of Miss Linnell would become a simple matter.

Richeson sent Miss Linnell medicine, inducing her to take it under the plea that his work made a postponement in their marriage necessary and assuring her she was doing no wrong by following his advice. She took the medicine, but without the desired result.

When Richeson was giving medicine to Miss Linnell, the Edwards family began to wonder why the young minister kept postponing the public announcement of his engagement to Violet and Richeson saw his chance for wealth and influence slipping away by exposure of his relations with Miss Linnell should he announce his coming marriage before he was in a position to safely jilt the trusting young choir singer.



Weather-Proof

Any man with a title to normal health may hurl cheery defiance in the teeth of the weather, even in its wilder moods.

It's wholly a matter of blood-current and tissue cells, and everybody knows that sturdiness and vigor in these regards depend largely on good, nourishing food.

Much of the food in the ordinary dietary is lacking in certain vitalizing elements which Nature has designed for sturdy growth and resistance to disease. Especially is this true of white bread and white flour foods, because in making flour white most of the energizing mineral phosphates of the grain are thrown out in the milling process.

These vital elements are retained in the scientifically prepared food—

Grape-Nuts

Made of whole wheat and barley, this food provides all the nutriment of the grain, including those vitalizing phosphates that mean everything in building up and maintaining a robust, vigorous body and keen intellect.

A ration of Grape-Nuts along with the other food has worked wonders for thousands. Ready to eat, economical, appetizing.

HUNT HERE FOR BOMB SUSPECT

A vigorous search is being made by plain clothes men today for a mysterious stranger, said to be a maker and salesman of bombs, whose advent in town has just become known.

The stranger is reported to have uttered threats to dynamite the Cathedral of the Holy Cross, the State House and other public buildings. It has been hinted that the man is connected with the so-called German spy plot just unearthed here.

The police are working under secret orders. They are carefully searching all the second-class hotels and lodging houses as the stranger's most likely headquarters.

The stranger is described as being "about thirty-five, well-dressed, smoothly-shaved and of medium complexion. He carries a corrugated steel suit case which is thought to contain his supply of bombs.

ONLY ONE CLEW AVAILABLE.

The one clew thus far secured places the stranger at a Washington street hotel late Saturday night. It was there he first attracted attention to himself by a remark dropped to a companion.

Several bystanders claim to have overheard him announce an intention to blow up the Cathedral and then the State House. The man disappeared while some one was notifying the police. He has not been located since.

In spite of his threat, however, no extra police guard has been placed about the Cathedral and the authorities know of no reason why the man should have any design on the edifice.

The police will not tell who originally called their attention to the man.

POLICE SILENT ON CASE.

At Police Headquarters the officers in charge say they know absolutely nothing regarding the case, but the fact remains that every station has been notified concerning the man and that officers from several of the stations are today seeking the man in all parts of the city, principally in the North, West and South Ends.

All of the second-class hotels which have licenses which permit them to sell liquor on Sundays are being visited, as are many cheap lodging houses.

The man was not a regular patron of the hotel where he was first seen, and the waiters and others say that they could not recall ever seeing him before, but would know him again should they see him.

Some of the police seeking the man say they do not know anything about him or who tipped the officials at headquarters to his being in the city. They say that all they have is his description and the information that he carried what resembled a corrugated steel suitcase.

CHAMBER TO HEAR EDWARD A. FILENE

Edward A. Filene will speak on "A Business View of the Peace to Come" at a dinner of the Boston Chamber of Commerce at the American House tomorrow evening at 6.30. As chairman of the National Chamber of Commerce's special committee on the war and American business, Mr. Filene has made a tour of the principal cities of the country, conferring with representative business men. His committee report was recently the subject of a referendum vote by the National Chamber. He has delivered this addresses before business bodies on the topic.

Tomorrow night will be Mr. Filene's first appearance before an audience of his fellow-members of the Boston Chamber.

SIEGEL TO GO FREE SOON

Rochester, N. Y., Feb. 14.—"Nothing to say."

This seems to sum up Henry Siegel's attitude toward the world on the eve of his reappearance.

Since he has been under the eyes of Captain Craig in the Monroe County penitentiary he has given out but two interviews to newspapermen. But now he denies himself to the one interviewer he has been willing to converse with in the past.

Siegel was sentenced to a term of ten months. Good behavior—and he has been a model in deportment—cuts off five days each month, or a total of fifty days, leaving a term of eight months and ten days. The time will be up in three weeks.

Captain Craig has been particularly interested in Siegel since his incarceration. But the captain can extract little information from his prisoner.

BUSY WITH PLANS.

"His mind is working on some plans," says Captain Craig. "What those are is more than I know. He always emphasizes the fact that God is led to do something, and he always says 'I'll make good, too.'"

Siegel is taking on flesh. Despite his confinement, his worries and the fact that he will eat only sparingly he has gained a few pounds since the day last June when he first sat down to prison fare. When he entered the prison Siegel had no desire to eat. Perhaps the food was too coarse for him. As time went on, however, he showed a liking for soups. And he likes fruit, too. His relatives have not forgotten him. A brother in Chicago and another in Detroit send him baskets of fruit regularly.

Siegel has not lost a certain sense of humor. Some time ago a report was in circulation that he had been seen in New York city. Captain Craig heard the report. He went to Siegel and said jokingly:

"I hear you were down in New York city for two days."

"What's that?" queried Siegel, and then added: "The air up here is pretty good for me without going down to New York city."

EXERCISES IN COURTYARD.

In the mild days that Rochester has experienced this Winter Siegel has taken daily exercise in the courtyard of the penitentiary, where prisoners are allowed recreation. He generally walks for half an hour or an hour each day, the length of the stroll depending on the temperature. He does not like cold weather and is apt to remain indoors on cold days.

Better than exercise he likes reading. Novels and other literature of a "lighter varieties—some of it very light—he reads constantly.

Over the holidays Siegel received many books from friends and relatives. Some of the volumes were of a serious nature, and he sent the books to New York for safekeeping, because, he said, "They're too good for me to read."

So, with meditation, reading and exercise, Siegel is trying to make the best of a bad business. He has become a model prisoner—making less trouble, says Captain Craig, than any other prisoner he ever has had.

Siegel has some work to do—clerical duties—in the Bertillon room. It is not much, but it helps. For one thing it helps him to pass time. Besides, of the prisoners and he appreciates that. He is not a "quiser."

HOME CONSUMPTION OF COTTON GROWS

Washington, Feb. 14.—A report of the Census Bureau of the Department of Commerce issued today shows cotton exclusive of linters consumed during January 542,055 running bales in 1916, compared with 467,862 in 1915, of which 298,115 bales were consumed in cotton growing States in 1916 and 260,707 in 1915. NEW YORK GIRL DIES OF LEPROSY

New York, Feb. 14.—The first death from leprosy in New York in many years occurred today in King's County Hospital, Brooklyn, when Tillie Davis, fifteen years old, succumbed after thirty-three months of illness. She was under ether at the time, as wrongs were about to operate on her to remove leprous obstructions which were choking her to death.

PROWLER STIRS MALDEN CITIZENS

Residents of the West End residential section of Malden have besieged the Malden police station with calls, asking that officers be detailed to capture a prowler who has frightened women and children of the district after dark for the past week.

EMILY G. BURGER, "Other Woman" in the Mohr case, who has been threatened twice by letter since the trial, and who has appealed to Attorney-General Rice of Rhode Island for protection.

DEFAMERS OF MOHR SCORED

By FLORENCE ORMSBY,
Dr. Mohr's Secretary.

Providence, Feb. 14.—Money had no value with Dr. Mohr. He often told of his early experiences in Providence, when money meant a great deal to him. Physicians do not speak well of him for the reason he entered a line of practice where he could get money and get it quickly.

I know of physicians right here who try to follow the same practice. Some of them are hiding behind the flimsiest subterfuge imaginable. Money, they say, money is the root of evil, but there are physicians digging after that root with a mask over their eyes so people will not know of their efforts.

A physician stopped me on the street since the finish of this trial and started to talk me about the doctor's business.

"He was a disgrace to the profession," said this man. Possibly he would not have ventured such a remark had he known that his line of practice was well known to the man he was so harshly criticising.

DOCTOR WAS GENEROUS.

It did not come out at the trial that Dr. Mohr, two weeks before he was finally murdered, sent checks of $50 each to two charitable organizations.

I made out the checks and mailed them after the doctor signed them. The receivers of these checks know. No one mentioned that at the trial.

I never knew of his refusing aid to any organization that asked for it. During my time of employment, some eight months, I can figure nearly $1,000 that left that man's hands for charity.

This man could not be all bad. He surely had some redeeming qualities and no one knows better than Emily Burger, Mrs. Mohr or myself whether this is based on fact. He was the greatest man in the world to get money from. He had a heart bigger than his efforts at the time of prosperity. I never knew him to refuse any object that had charity for its foundation.

I recall night after night when I would make up the record slip with the cash receipts for the bank he would ask casually: "How much money did we do yesterday, Florence?"

RIDICULES ROBBERY.

On naming the figure, he would invariably exclaim:

"Can I afford to give some of that away?"

Heading on taking me home with hundreds of dollars know I had the money. He never thought of holding me up. It is ridiculous to have such thoughts. At times Hollis would remark: "Not much business the doctor was doing."

I have heard people say Dr. Mohr was signed "John Doe," and the police said they did not believe it to be genuine, explaining that they regarded it more as a "fictitious joke" than anything else.

The note, written on hotel stationery and dated yesterday, was addressed "To the World as a Farewell." It reads:

"This is the darkest hours of my existance on this earth which I am soon to leave. I seriously (scarcely) know what to do. Believe me I know not where to place the blame for my condition. I know it is not my breeding. I was as without at the average man. My training & environment was bad & if such a thing as luck enters into a man's life I certainly had what they call bad luck. I am somewhat to blame myself.

However I have disliked that death is better than Humiliation. I have no friends to worth for me and if I had I would not want them to mourn. I had many chances in life and I have squandered them. I am sorry I did so. I have no advice to leave as what I should say would not be taken seriously. Anyhow, I want to say I have not one man or woman on earth I owe it will be paid, and all I ask of the world is charity of its good will and not speak of my shortcomings. I have long contemplated this step, but now I am drove to it.

JOHN DOE."

PICK UP "SUICIDE" NOTE BY "JOHN DOE"

A "suicide" note was found on Tremont street, near the corner of School, today. It was signed "John Doe," and the police said they did not believe it to be genuine, explaining that they regarded it more as a "fictitious joke" than anything else.

The note, written on hotel stationery and dated yesterday, was addressed "To the World as a Farewell." It reads:

DEATH THREATS CAUSE MISS BURGER TO ASK PROTECTION

Mohr. He wrote them to all his patients. You want to be more careful how you act or you may meet your beloved one over the Golden Gate before many moons. Someone may finish the job started last August 21."

The handwriting Miss Burger is confident she has recognized. On account of her belief that she knows who wrote these threatening letters she appealed to the Attorney-General of Rhode Island for aid.

Miss Burger, in the letter she addressed to Miss Burger, in the future, are to be turned over to the State's attorney unopened. After they have been examined, the personal letters will be turned over to Miss Burger.

FOR PROBE OF MAIL.

What precautions were taken by the Attorney-General's office to guard Miss Burger, she did not know. No information could be secured about the matter from the Attorney-General's office. It is understood, however, that the matter has been turned over to United States postal inspectors for investigation.

In addition to threats against her life, Miss Burger said today that there seems to be a campaign in Providence to make trouble for her, so persistent as to seem almost organized. Many statements have been made, she declared, which are not only untrue but seem calculated to arouse suspicions of her good faith in testifying for the State in the case against Mrs. Mohr, her unsuccessful rival for the affections of Dr. Mohr.

One of these statements, given new publicity than the rest, was to the effect that Miss Burger and Homer H. Spellman, the colored stable boy, convicted with Cecil Victor Brown, of the murder of the doctor, were fellow pupils in school and old time friends.

"That is a malicious lie," Miss Burger declared. "I never even saw Henry Spellman until he went to work for the doctor. These statements about our going to school together are absolutely false.

"The public school records will bear me out. I ask the AMERICAN as a special personal favor to me to contradict these malicious untruths."

This apparent campaign of calumny, Miss Burger also reported to the Attorney-General in accordance with his instructions to her to keep him posted on everything unusual, or even the most trivial nature, that developed after Mrs. Mohr was acquitted.

Efforts are already being made by the Attorney-General's office to run down the source of these statements. This activity on the part of the State has tended to strengthen the belief that the second charge against Mrs. Mohr, of assault on Miss Burger with intent to kill, may be pressed as soon as the question of the appeal of Brown and Spellman has been decided one way or another.

CLOSING UP ESTATE.

Since Mrs. Mohr left Providence to secure quiet and rest that she declared was denied her by her friends in this city, no word has been received from her, even by her attorneys.

In accordance with the signed agreement with the son-and-daughter of Dr. Mohr by his first marriage, preparations were commenced today for the liquidation of Dr. Mohr's estate, of which Mrs. Mohr is to receive $5,000, and then one-fifth of the remainder, or about $24,000 in all. The other four-fifths are to be shared equally by the four children of Dr. Mohr.

Alexander to Be Band Leader at 'Happy 20' Ball

Some of the best professional talent in Boston will appear at the eighth annual ball and cabaret show of the Happy Twenty in Convention Hall on March 10.

Alexander the Great will direct the band. Then there will be dances by Clayton, Jackson and Elizabeth Gallagher, who performed so admirably last year; Abess Allen and Margaret Johnson.

While all this and many other features are going on in the upper hall from 8 p. m. till 2 a. m. the cabaret will be in full swing on the lower floor, guided by Billy Lang of the Feist Publishing Company. Ragtime banjo players will give the popular airs.

"Happy," king of the newsboys, reports a brisk demand for tickets. He finds it impossible to handle the tickets himself and has supplied the pasteboards to the newsboys on the busy thoroughfares, who will supply all comers.

Six Below As Firemen Fight Marlboro Blaze

Marlboro, Feb. 14.—A general alarm was sounded shortly after 6 o'clock today for a fire which destroyed the St. Jean Baptiste building at Bread and Lincoln streets, one of the largest buildings in this city, causing damage estimated by the police at $40,000, most of which is covered by insurance.

Starting in the rear of the building near the boiler room, the fire ate its way up through three floors and burst through the roof.

The temperature at that time stood at 6 below zero and many firemen suffered severely from frostbitten hands and ears.

The building was owned by the St. Jean Baptiste Society, which occupies quarters on the second floor. On the first floor were Joseph Bouvier, druggist; Lewis Chaput, groceries, and E. A. Gauthier, retail liquors. Besides the rooms of the St. Jean Society on the second floor, where many valuable trophies and banners were destroyed, the Union Dramatic Club had its quarters. The third floor was used as a hall.

The Boudreau Building, next door to the Baptist Building, caught, but was extinguished with slight loss.

MANY HURT IN N. Y. ELEVATED CRASH

By International News Service.

New York, Feb. 14.—Many persons were injured today, several seriously, in a rear-end collision of two trains on the Third avenue elevated at One Hundred and Eighty-third street.

A southbound express train crowded with men and women on their way to work was stalled at the station when another train crashed into it from behind. The rear car of the stalled train and the front car of the second were smashed.

Ambulances were summoned from the Fordham and Lebanon Hospitals and the injured carried over slippery tracks to receive medical attention.

MRS. AUSTIN, FILM STAR, ASKS DIVORCE

By International News Service.

Savannah, Ga., Feb. 14.—Mrs. Marie Shotwell Austin, actress and motion picture star, has filed suit for divorce from William G. Austin, former chief of police, alleging cruelty and desertion.

Mrs. Austin alleges that, although living in the same house, Austin has lived entirely to himself since December, 1912, speaking to her during that time only at rare intervals. She asks for temporary and permanent alimony.

BAFF DEATH PLOTTERS SOUGHT

By International News Service.

New York, Feb. 14.—Warrants have been issued for the men "higher up" in the Baff murder mystery, and the police today are seeking them out.

Those wanted are:

1—The second gunman in the Baff killing. This man accompanied Giuseppe Archiello, one of the slayers, and fired the fatal shot at Baff.

2—A prominent chicken merchant, who negotiated with Ignilio Greco for the slaying of Baff and accompanied the murderer to the scene of the crime.

3—A second politico, who conspired with Greco and Archiello to get rid of Baff's death. This man is said to have stopped the touring car on one of its trips to the Washington market and advised the occupants to do a good job.

Ten other members of the murder sub-committee of a dozen men also face indictment on charges of first degree murder. Some of the men already have escaped, according to the authorities.

The names of every member of the murder organization as well as the contributors to the murder fund are said to be in the hands of the authorities.

Some of the men named in the warrants already have been in the tombs.

They were arrested in the raids and held as material witnesses on a technical charge of vagrancy.

"From the material already in hand there is no reason to believe that the murder steering committee of twelve men individually were unconnected with any steps in the enterprise," said District Attorney Swann.

"If this is true these men are in the same position as was Becker. Under section twenty-three of the penal code a man is held to be as guilty as the actual slayers in the murder if he advises or procures such a murder.

"There is reason to believe now that all were engaged in the common enterprise to murder Baff."

In addition the district-attorney stated that he now had enough evidence in hand to convict the four gunmen, who have confessed being in the murder car and to see them in the electric chair. The men now held are Frank Ferarra, chauffeur; Giuseppe Archiello, gunman; and Antonio and Joseph Zarrarina, laborers.

Everet Janssen Wendall, millionaire clubman and social worker, is credited with influencing Ferrara and Archiello to confess their part in the Baff murder. Mr. Wendall became associated with the men during his labors in the East Side.

SAYS HIGH MILK PRICE ASSURES HIGH GRADE

That no hope can be held out for a lower price of milk is one of the important conclusions reached by the milk board of the State Department of Health after a long investigation, made public today.

In fact, the board states, "at the present prices, or even at considerably higher prices than those now charged, milk is one of the most economical of foods."

"There are no reasonable grounds for believing that the retail price of milk can be lowered," the board continues.

The board even goes to the extent of suggesting that it would be advisable to pay higher prices for the better grades of milk. Speaking of the advisability of introducing the New York grading system in this State, the board says:

"It would divide the producers' milk into different grades depending upon the character under which the milk was produced, where at present there is but one grade. This system, furthermore, would supply different grades of milk to the public which could be purchased at prices varying according to the character of the milk.

LACK GENERAL PROTECTION.

"By a process of education, the public would soon appreciate the differences between these grades and the demand for the high-grade milk would increase. This would probably cause a competition among the dealers."

The board states that only 20 per cent. of the entire population of the State receive protection from bad milk by local boards of health.

"The balance receives some protection," the board states, "but only forty-three per cent. is adequately protected. If Boston is excluded from the list of cities and towns, 25 per cent. of the population receive no protection and only 20 per cent. is adequately protected from possible dangers arising from the milk supply."

That the system of dairy inspection by the big milk contractors is not so efficient as the contractors would lead the people to believe is another of the conclusions reached by the board.

"To insure the safety of milk as a human food," the board says, "two procedures of control are necessary. First, the cattle, the methods of production and distribution should be under inspection; secondly, the product should be treated with application of heat in order to destroy all disease germs that may be present."

MUST USE IDLE LAND.

"The great distance from the milk-producing areas, together with careless handling and slow transportation, tend to place a large amount of milk on the Massachusetts market which is less desirable than the milk produced nearby.

"Sufficient milk to supply Massachusetts could be produced within the borders of the State if the thousands of acres of naturally good dairy lands now lying idle were stocked with milch cattle.

"The principal reason for the decline in dairying in this State is the low price paid producers.

"Milk can be bought at lower rates at out-of-State points than Massachusetts farmers can produce it with profit."

The board recommends a centralization of the diversified authority of the present milk inspection system.

NEW YORK INCOME TAX TO REACH ALL

By International News Service.

New York, Feb. 14.—The joint legislative Committee on Taxation has made public the provisions of the proposed amendment to the tax laws, relative to imposing an income tax on individuals and corporations.

Under the provisions of the amendment, corporations will pay an annual tax of 3 per cent. upon and with respect to the entire taxable income. A sliding scale is provided for individuals.

Persons with incomes of $200 or less will pay an annual tax of $1. Incomes ranging from $200 to $500 will be taxed $1.50. It increases at this rate until $1,000 is reached. Incomes of the latter amount will pay $5.

From $1,000 to $2,000 the tax increases $1 for each $100. Incomes of $2,000, therefore, will pay $20. Incomes above this amount will pay $20 plus 2 per cent.

TRAWLER WINS IN A RACE FOR LIFE

The steam trawler Foam came into port today, ending a race for life that began early yesterday when W. J. Forbes of Malden, a member of the crew, was caught in a steam winch and badly hurt. He needed proper medical aid, so the Foam sped for port through the storm, and Forbes was hurried to the Chelsea Marine Hospital.

FAMILY SAVED FROM FIRE BY BARKING DOG

The family of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Drew of No. 112 Beaumont street, Dorchester, were roused and saved from a fire early today by the barking of a collie dog, "Rex."

Drew with his wife and four small children hastily dressed and escaped through a window of his apartment to the ell of the house, where Mr. Drew finally obtained a ladder and helped all his family to safety.

A neighbor, Arthur S. MacDonald of No. 116 Beaumont street, is now sheltering the family.

The house was burned to the ground. It was one of the buildings of the old Carruth estate. The family saved nothing but the clothing in which they escaped.

CAR JUMPS RAIL AT CHARLESTOWN

Glass of Hot Water Before Breakfast a Splendid Habit

Open sluices of the system each morning and wash away the poisonous, stagnant matter.

Those of us who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when we arise; splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, lame back, can, instead, both look and feel as fresh as a daisy always by washing the poisons and toxins from the body with phosphated hot water each morning.

We should drink, before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to flush from the stomach, liver, kidneys and ten yards of bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; rinse, cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary tract before putting more food into the stomach.

The action of limestone phosphate and hot water on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast, and it is said to be but a little while until the roses begin to appear in the cheeks. A quarter pound of limestone phosphate will cost very little at the drug store, but is sufficient to make anyone who is bothered with biliousness, constipation, stomach trouble or rheumatism a real enthusiast on the subject of internal sanitation. Try it and you are assured that you will look better and feel better in every way shortly.—Advertisement.

Cost of a Ton of Anthracite Coal from Mine to Cellar

A Ton of Anthracite Stove Coal (weighing 2240) pounds and delivered in the Coal Bin in New York District at $7.25 Averages at the Mine $3.55 and Yields a Return, on the Investment, of 20 Cents.

The lack of accurate information, relative to the production, carrying and marketing of coal, has caused many fair-minded men to ask questions, believing that there was a tremendous profit for someone connected with the coal industry, either in its production, transportation or sale and delivery.

That there may be no further doubt on this subject, there is set forth below, a plain, easily-understood statement, showing the cost in detail.

Cost to Consumers, Per Ton ..... $7.25 (For long ton of 2,240 lbs. or $6.48 av. cost per ton of 2,000 lbs.

Retailing Cost (Average) Per Ton

Rent of office and yard, lighterage, handling at yard, breakage, cartage, administration expenses and retailers' profit, per ton..... $2.15

Transportation Cost (Average) Per Ton

Freight from Lehigh and Schuylkill regions to New York harbor, per ton 1.55

Production Cost (Average) Per Ton

Colliery cost, per ton, labor (approximately $1.80); materials of all kinds, royalty, taxes, depreciation of coal lands, and equipment, administration expenses and accident indemnities, per ton 2.40

Losses on small sizes of coal, sold at less than cost of production, per ton ..... .95

Operators' Earnings, available for return on investment, average per ton, (Latest report of U. S. Census shows less) ..... .20

$7.25

The operators have no part in retailing coal and the figures of cost and profit for retailer represents the difference between the price to the retailer and the cost to the consumer. This retail value of $7.25 per long ton or $6.50 per short ton, varies in different cities and towns because of varying freight rates and varying conditions governing the handling and delivery of coal to the consumer.

In order to encourage the buying of coal, in the months of low consumption, and to insure regularity of mine operation and labor employment, the prices are fixed below the average in the Spring and above the average in the Winter months, varying in the same town with the seasons of the year.

Average Receipts of Various Sizes of Coal at the Mine

Anthracite, as it comes from the mine, is a mixture of all sizes, from lump to dust, and contains a certain amount of rock, slate and bone. In order to remove the refuse, break down the lump coal and screen the product into nine commercial sizes, the mine coal is dumped into a "breaker," where it is subjected to an extensive and expensive manufacturing process. The proportion of the resultant sizes is a matter beyond the control of the operator and depends on the character of the coal he gets from the mine. The percentage of each size varies as between different collieries and at different times at the same colliery. What is more to the point, the market price of the different sizes varies more widely than the percentage of each.

The report of the U. S. Geological Survey, for 1914, page 717, gives the amount and percentage of each size produced in that year in the entire field. By using these percentages and by assigning to each size of coal the average net receipts at the mine actually realized by some of the larger companies, it can readily be determined that each 100 tons of coal dumped into the breaker would produce the following average results:—

Size of Coal.	Part of Each in 100 Tons.	Average Price Realized.	Total Value.
Lump and Broken	5.50 tons	at $2.95	$16.23
Egg	12.40 tons	at 3.45	42.78
Stove	20.60 tons	at 3.55	73.13
Chestnut	23.00 tons	at 3.75	86.25
Pea	11.80 tons	at Average $3.36	$50.31
Buckwheat	13.40 tons
Rice	6.80 tons
Barley	6.70 tons
	100.00 tons		$268.10 Value of 100 tons.
Average value per ton			$2.68

Sizes sold below cost of production in year 1914.

Losses from shrinkage, prepreparing, on account of storage and rehandling, bring the price down to about $2.60 per ton at the mine—the last figures reported by the United States Geological Survey, to which adding loss on small sizes of coal sold below cost of production (95 cents a ton) makes a total of $3.55 per ton.

At some mines the cost of labor is less and the proportions of profitable sizes are greater and the profits correspondingly larger, but there are just as many where the proportion of domestic coal is less and the colliery returns lower. Public necessity requires the output of all the mines, and the price of the entire product must be high enough to enable the continued operation of those mines which yield the smaller returns, but which must be operated in order to supply the needs of the public.

The situation is much like that of the butcher who buys his beef on the "side" for 10 cents a pond. He sells his choice cuts at 30 cents a pound, less desirable cuts at 20 cents a pound and brisket and shin bone at 9 cents a pound. His profits are obtained from the choicer cuts. The anthracite operator gets from 55 cents to $3.75 per ton for his coal, selling 40 per cent. of his output below the cost of production. He cannot get more for his small sizes, because they are in competition with bituminous coal for steam purposes.

Freight Charges Determined By Law

Those who question this item should realize that the making of freight rates on coal, as well as on every other commodity in the United States, is in the hands of the Interstate Commerce Commission, which has full power to raise, lower or confirm existing freight rates. On April 1st, of this year, an order of the Interstate Commerce Commission becomes effective, establishing a comprehensive schedule of freight rates on Anthracite Coal throughout the entire section of the United States bounded by the Mississippi, Ohio and Potomac Rivers and the Atlantic Ocean.

What a Twenty (20) Per Cent. Increase in Wages Will Mean

The anthracite industry as a whole is now conducted on as low a margin of profit as is possible if the operators are to continue to serve the public.

Among other demands, the miners ask for an increase of Twenty (20) per cent. in wages. The cost of this one demand alone to the anthracite industry will be $23,000,000.00 annually, which is approximately twice the total profits made by the operators, as stated by the latest report of the United States Bureau of the Census.

POLICE BELIEVE DR. LYMAN, FUGITIVE, HIDING IN EAST

Pending the hearing in New York on Thursday for Louis B. Thornet, office manager for Dr. J. Grant Lyman, the million-dollar swindler of international fame, federal and municipal authorities are scouring the East for Lyman, who fled from New York just in time to avoid arrest.

It was first reported that he sailed Thursday on the Baltic for England. Now this report is denied and he is said to be in hiding still in this country.

Lyman is the man who fled from Boston late last May, after passing a bold month here under two names. Along State street, where he held membership in a curb brokerage firm, he called himself "Dr. John G. Lorimer." This gave him the same initials as "Dr. J. Grant Lyman" and fitted the "J. G. L." monogram on many of his personal articles.

LURID CAREER IN BOSTON.

But at the Hotel Harvard on Huntington avenue he registered as "C. A. Wills." He was accompanied by a woman whom he introduced as his wife. "Mr. and Mrs. Wills" left Boston a few jumps ahead of the law, after the man had fleeced Bostonians out of several thousands.

Lyman reappeared in New York and established the brokerage office of "John H. Putnam & Co." He is now said to have cleaned up $300,000 in his latest Manhattan ventures. The federal officers missed him, but they did get Louis B. Thornet, his office manager.

In 1911 Lyman made a sensational escape from the San Francisco authorities while under guard at an Oakland, Cal., hospital. He was aided by Thornet, who was one of the nurses.

The office manager now held in $15,000 bonds for a hearing Thursday has confessed that he is the same Thornet who helped Lyman escape five years ago and that he served eighteen months for his part in the plot. Thornet also established the identity of "Putnam," his missing principal, as Lyman.

This confirmation is the last straw for the disgusted federal inspectors in New York and for private detectives of the New York Stock Exchange.

FIVE YEARS ON TRAIL.

Gorham Tufts, a rich Los Angeles victim of Lyman's exploits in 1911, who has been on Lyman's trail ever since, says that no notified authorities in New York three times that Lyman was operating openly in Manhattan. Tufts says he was laughed at for his pains. But he was right and the inspectors were too late.

There is mystery about the woman who was in Boston as "Mrs. C. A. Wills." When Lyman fled Oakland in 1911 he was said to have been aided by a Miss Madel Lehman, a New York heiress. Lyman had previously declared himself engaged to a Miss Lehman.

FOUR MORE OUT TO LEAD FIGHT FOR T. R.

Four more Massachusetts men have announced their desires to be sent to the Republican national convention as delegates pledged to Colonel Roosevelt. They are:

Wilkins Tredic Jones of Somerville.

Representative Fred P. Greenwood of Everett.

Former Representative Eben H. Googins of Cambridge.

C. Chester Eaton of Brockton.

Senator Weeks has been in conversation over the telephone from Washington with several of his political supporters in Boston and he is making plans for a strong fight.

It is said that in a few days he will make an announcement of his plans and of the policy to be pursued by the Roosevelt opposition. The junior senator will not retire. He is confident of success.

Senator Lodge has assured his colleague that, although he does not propose to fight Mr. Roosevelt, on account of his personal relations with the ex-President, he stands ready to redeem his promise to go to the convention as a delegate from Massachusetts and do what he can for Mr. Weeks' nomination.

Matthew Hale, secretary of the Progressive party, has issued a statement in which he says:

"I hope that the four men who have just announced their candidacy as Roosevelt delegates-at-large will carry the Republican primaries next April, and I shall be very glad to help them in every way possible.

"When it actually comes to deciding on the Republican nominee, I feel that the matter should be left to the members of the Republican party. I am a member of the Progressive party, therefore I shall not vote in the Republican primaries.

"I am sure, however, that the nomination of Roosevelt by the Republican party will be hailed with delight by the members of the Progressive party throughout this country."

"The appearance of this Roosevelt ticket is no news to me," says Charles S. Baxter, Governor McCall's campaign manager.

"To have three candidates in the field here, McCall, Roosevelt and Weeks—to name them alphabetically—would be utterly demoralizing. I regret exceedingly the appearance of the Roosevelt slate for delegates and alternates. It only tends to reopen the breach made in the party in 1912, and so to jeopardize success."

BODY FOUND IN LOWELL FIRE RUINS

Lowell, Feb. 14.—The body of Charles Daly, who has been missing since the fire two weeks ago in a storehouse of the Merrimack Utilization Company, was found today in the fire ruins by men investigating for insurance adjusters. The body was near a window, with arms outstretched as though Daly had been overcome in a dash for safety. He evidently was suffocated. Daly was a laborer, forty-nine years old.

MRS. E. E. BLOOD OF MANCHESTER DEAD

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 14.—Mrs. Elizabeth E. Blood, wife of Sidney A. Blood, and mother of Leighton H. Blood, a Boston newspaper man, is dead at her home here. She was the daughter of Ransom Fletcher and Elitia Lucas Fletcher of Groton, N. H., and is survived, besides her son, by a brother, four nephews and a niece. She had been a resident of Manchester thirty-seven years.

REAR ADMIRAL FOX, RETIRED, DIES AT 65

Washington, Feb. 14.—Rear Admiral Charles E. Fox, U. S. N., retired, is dead at his residence here of heart disease. He was in his sixty-fifth year.

Rear Admiral Fox was the grandson of Commodore Charles Morris. He was born at Chelsea, Mass., September 26, 1851. He was retired in August, 1911, while commandant of the Charleston, S. C., navy yard.

DEEPEST SNOW IN BOSTON IN 24 YEARS

The streets of Boston are today being cleared after the heaviest snowfall recorded at the local weather bureau in more than twenty-four years.

The storm, which caused no disaster and very little damage, ended late last night after raging the better part of three whole days.

The fall in Boston totalled about seventeen inches. Worcester and Beverly recorded the greatest depth, with a fall of twenty-four inches each. Gloucester reported eighteen inches, Haverhill fourteen and Springfield thirteen.

The lightest fall recorded in New England was at Portland, Me. Here but a fall of six inches was registered.

Not since 1892, when, in the first four days of March, 21.6 inches fell, has this Boston record been surpassed. In January, 1904, two storms a week apart produced 22.8 inches, however, and the depth of snow on the ground that Winter was often greater than the average of 36 or 37 inches now.

RAGES ALL ALONG COAST.

All along the Atlantic Coast the storm raged, with heavy falls of snow from Maine to New Jersey, and slighter amounts as far south as Norfolk, Va., and Raleigh, N. C.

Today, however, with the storm over, the forecast is more cheering. Fair and continued cold, with moderate northwest winds, is the current word, and continued fair weather, rising temperature and moderate westerly winds are promised for tomorrow.

The storm, save for its persistence, was in no way sensational; far greater damage has been done by storms of much briefer duration and smaller snowfall.

HUNDREDS HELP SHOVEL.

To the street railway companies the storm was a "comic" valentine, for the employment of men for overtime on the plows at more than usual rates (45 cents an hour for motormen on the Bay State and 25 cents for conductors and uniform helpers) made very big holes, which in the case of the Boston Elevated are increased by the cost of team and shoved work, etc.

The Elevated, though, did not suffer a single accident of block by reason of the storm so well did it keep its tracks clear, the only delays resulting when some wagon or other vehicle became stalled.

The company had a veritable army during the storm.

The Bay State and steam railroads also experienced little trouble by the heavy snowfall, few delays being recorded by either.

The city also had a big force out combatting the storm.

In New York 20,000 men were employed to clear the streets. Many wires were torn down, but little damage done.

In Philadelphia the streets for several hours resembled a vast network of frozen canals, and for the first time in years it was possible to traverse the city from one end to the other on the skates.

MORE RETURN TO CORDAGE PLANT

Plymouth, Feb. 14.—From 150 to 200 operatives returned to work when the Plymouth Cordage Company opened the gates of its big plant at 8 o'clock today. Those going back were from the German and American element among the operatives, and made the greatest number entering the plant since the strike began, four weeks ago today.

The Italian and Portuguese strikers held out, but made no trouble for those who returned. Company officials declared that more would have come in but for the heavy snow. The heavy police guard was maintained today.

20 INJURED IN RIOT AT PAWTUCKET

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Feb. 14.—Twenty men were cut and clubbing in a riot among operatives at the Royal Weaving Company's silk mill today, caused by the refusal of some of the operatives to go out, on a second strike. The rioters broke machinery before they were suspended by the police.

The 900 operatives had been back working a week after striking. The discharge today of two of the strike committee caused some of the operatives to start out. Refusal of others to go out caused the riot.

JAMES E. HILL OF LOWELL DEAD

Lowell, Feb. 14.—James Edward Hill, veteran of many Civil War engagements, died here today, aged seventy-six. He served with Company C of the Sixth Regiment, which was in the Baltimore riot, where the first bloodshed of the war took place. Hill was in the battles of Gettysburg, Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville, Missionary Ridge and fourteen engagements to a total of a dozen, and was also in Sherman's famous "march to the sea."

COMERY'S SPIRIT UNDAUNTED AS DEATH NEARS

Concord, N. H., Feb. 14.—The final preparations for the execution here, Friday morning, of Oscar J. Comery, the doomed wife-slayer, are today being rushed by Sheriff Stearns.

A squad of carpenters are at work erecting the gallows in the prison yard, where Comery will be hanged. It will be the first execution in the State for twenty-three years.

In the past executions have been held inside the prison walls. The yard has now been chosen by Sheriff Stearns, however, in order that the other prisoners may not be disturbed by the arrangements for the hanging.

MANY TO LEAVE CITY.

Many Concord people will leave the city Friday because of the hanging. Representative Lewis Chase of Concord is one of the leaders in New Hampshire against the continuance of this punishment and as a protest against the continuance of this punishment he and many of his friends will go to Concord at the time of the hanging.

One feature of the Comery execution will be the small number of witnesses. Sheriff Stearns has not yet completed arrangements in this matter, but there will be no more than twelve, and perhaps not that number. Dr. George and Dr. Maurice Watson, both of Manchester, and Dr. Henry Adams of Concord have been invited.

COMERY'S NERVE UNDAUNTED.

Comery is apparently spending his last days in good spirits. He eats well and sleeps soundly, and although a constant watch is kept over him he is allowed to exercise in the hallway of the woman's ward, to which he was moved last week.

Interest in the execution throughout New Hampshire is great and this fact is proven from the hundreds of applications from people who wish to witness the hanging.

Early last week Comery, through the persuasion of his sister, Mrs. George St. Cyr of Manchester, asked to see a Catholic priest. Rev. Thomas M. O'Leary, pastor of St. John's Church, Concord, visited the murderer in his cell and it was announced after the meeting between the two that Comery has become reconciled to the Catholic faith.

OARSMAN ON OLD AGGIE CREW DIES

Monson, Feb. 14.—Arthur D. Norcross, sixty-seven, who was a member of the first class to graduate from Massachusetts Agricultural College and who rowed on the famous crew of that college which in 1871 finished third in the Connecticut regatta in dead here. He served several terms in Massachusetts Senate and House.

ALARMING PNEUMONIA DEATH RATE IS WARNING AGAINST NEGLECT OF COLDS

More Than Half the Number of Cases Result Fatally

Figures that have just been compiled by experts show that almost half the number of pneumonia cases end in death. This is the pneumonia season, and neglect of colds is in most cases the origin of the disease. When you take "cough balsams" or "syrups" containing deadly drugs that weaken the body, you are inviting pneumonia. Without these drugs, Father John's Medicine treats colds and prevents pneumonia. It is composed of pure food elements which nourish and build up the body, giving strength to ward off the disease. It is not a patent medicine, but a physician's prescription; 50 years in use. Because of its gentle laxative effect Father John's Medicine drives the impurities out of the system and enables each organ to do its work.

It is in the getting-well stage, after a cold or the grip, that the greatest danger lies. At this time, in order to regain the strength you have lost you need a wholesome pure food medicine such as Father John's Medicine, the nourishing elements of which are easily taken up by the system. When you ask for Father John's Medicine be sure you get what you call for.—Advertisement.

To Prevent Grip

When you feel a cold coming on, stop it with a few doses of LAXATIVE BROMO QUININE, which destroys germs, acts as a Tonic and Laxative, and keeps the system in condition to throw off attacks of Colds, Grip and Influenza.

SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

BARBARA RICE IS PROMINENT

MISS SARAH SHERBURNE MAKES HER DEBUT

MISS BARBARA RICE.

She has taken part in many social affairs since her debut. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. George T. Rice of Westwood.

Notable among the younger Boston society girls who came out last year is Miss Barbara Rice, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George T. Rice (Margaret Forbes Perkins) of Westwood.

Miss Rice ushered Thursday at the meeting given by the Brookline division of the Red Cross enrollment campaign and on Saturday she was again an usher at the Chestnut Hill Clubhouse benefit for the Children's Museum. Both this year and last season she has appeared at a number of important social affairs.

o o o

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Arthur Shumatt of Beacon street have left town for their annual Winter outing. They expect to spend a few days in New York and go from there to Atlantic City for a short sojourn.

o o o

Miss Sarah Sherburne's debut party tonight at the Copley-Plaza is an event of much importance to the Winter's debutantes.

Miss Sherburne, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Sherburne of Beacon street, has been seen in society all the season, but is late in her formal presentation.

The invitations are confined almost entirely to the younger set, with the one notable exception of Mrs. John C. Fairchild, Miss Sherburne's godmother, who came up from New York for the function.

The ushers include Sherburne Wiggin, Morrill Wiggin, Lucius P. Hill, John Phillips, Endicott Putnam, Moseley Taylor, Abbott Ingalls, Hurd Hutchins, Weyman Crocker, Henry Guild, Henry Everett and Richard Everett.

o o o

Two interesting dinners to be given before the Sherburne dance are those of Mrs. Homer B. Richardson and Mrs. Theodore P. Burgess.

Mrs. Richardson's is for her debutante daughter, Miss Frances Clark, who is an intimate friend of Miss Sherburne's. The dinner party of twenty-four will attend the theatre before the dance.

Mrs. Burgess is entertaining in honor of her daughter, Miss Elizabeth Burgess, one of the most popular debutantes of the Winter.

Mrs. Robert Gould Shaw was in charge of the meeting today of the equal franchise committee, when Mrs. J. Borden Harriman spoke on "Women in Industry." A room in the residence of Mrs. Bayard Thayer was used for the purpose.

POSTAL ASSOCIATES BANQUET J. F. WARD

J. Frank Ward, superintendent of the Essex street postoffice, was honored with a reception and banquet at the Quincy House by the Essex Street Postoffice Employes' Association. Clerks and carriers to the number of 150 attended. The affair marked the thirteenth anniversary and banquet of the association.

A bouquet of American Beauty roses, a box of violets and a large box of lava buns were presented Asst. Ward. Postmaster William F. Murray and Assistant Postmaster W. E. Hurley were unable to attend.

BRANDEIS TELLS OF HIS UNITED SHOE STAND

New York, Feb. 14.—A letter written by Louis D. Brandeis to United States Senator Moses E. Clapp of Minnesota on February 24, 1912, explaining his connection with the United Shoe Machinery Company case, has been made public.

The letter was in answer to accusations of "unethical conduct" made against him to the effect that after serving as attorney and director of the company, Mr. Brandeis withdrew and later acted as attorney for a group of manufacturers in a suit against the company as the unlawful trust.

Mr. Brandeis wrote that in April, 1906, he believed the policy and methods of the company were "legally and morally unobjectionable."

"I was then of this opinion," he said, "that under some conditions monopoly in industry could operate beneficially to the public; or, in other words, that there were 'good trusts' as well as 'bad trusts.'

"I believed, not unnaturally, that this company, which was managed by men in whose ability and judgment I then had confidence, was such a 'good trust.'"

He based this opinion, he said, on the ground that the shoe machinery monopoly appeared to help the small manufacturers, promoted competition and started out with "certain perfectly admirable principles."

In May, 1906, W. H. McElwain, president of the W. H. McElwain Company, and Charles H. Jones, president of the Commonwealth Shoe and Leather Company, called his attention, he said, "to certain features in their leases—notably the so-called tying clauses."

In the Fall of that year so "serious a doubt had been raised in my mind as to the soundness of their general policy," and particularly as to the propriety of one of their methods that he decided to "quietly retire" as a director.

He resigned, he said, on December 5, 1906. He ceased as counsel for the company on January 7, 1907.

"Then came the legislation in Massachusetts regulating the sales and leases of machinery in 1907, he said, "and by the Summer of 1910 the situation had entirely changed from what it was in 1906."

"The United Shoe Machinery Company," he continued, "had shown a determined purpose to ignore or evade the act prohibiting tying clauses," and the United States Supreme Court had shown its purpose of enforcing the Sherman act.

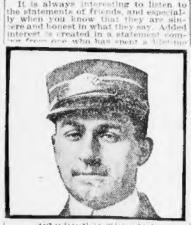
Mr. Brandeis recited the history of the purchase by the trust of the Thomas G. Plant system of shoe machinery, which Mr. Plant wanted to place on the market, but could not because the United Shoe Machinery trust declared manufacturers would be precluded from using it by reasons of their leases with the trust, and later concluded that, if called upon he would lend his aid in any effort that might be made to restore competitive conditions in the industry.

On May 27, 1910, the officers of the Shoe Manufacturers' Alliance, he said, gave him this opportunity by asking him to act as their counsel in an effort to secure this competition.

VERY SKEPTICAL OF PLANT JUICE

Motorman on the Boston Elevated Received Surprise When Remedy Cured Him.

It is always interesting to listen to the statements of friends, and especially when you know that they are sincere and honest in what they say. Added interest is created in a statement coming from one who has spent a lifetime in the employ of a corporation and is possessed of the respect and confidence of his friends and associates. Such a man is Mr. Lawrence Mullaly, who resides at No. 251 Elm Street, Cambridge, and is employed by the Boston Elevated R. R. Company as motorman. He stated:



"I had suffered for years with my stomach, and had indigestion and dyspepsia so badly that I could not digest my food, and in fact could scarcely keep anything in my stomach, as it would ferment and cause me to vomit. I hated to sit down to the table I suffered such pain. My stomach was all bloated and I had shooting pains all over my body; also palpitation of the heart; my liver and kidneys were affected, and I felt so miserable I was completely discouraged of ever getting any better. I had tried a number of different medicines without relief, and when Plant Juice was recommended to me I had my doubts about it doing me. However, I started to use it, and to my complete surprise I felt some relief after the first few doses, and now, since I have continued to take it, I have no more trouble with indigestion or dyspepsia, and can eat anything I want, sleep well, liver and kidneys are in perfect order, and I am telling all my friends how Plant Juice cured me."

Plant Juice acts like magic in stomach trouble, gas, fermentation, heavy, distressed feeling after meals and, on retiring. It attacks and destroys all poisons in the blood, corrects diseased conditions of the liver and kidneys and restores them to normal condition.

The Plant Juice Man is at the Liggett Drug Company's store, corner of Washington and Avon Streets, where he is daily meeting his local public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy.—Advertisement.

Children Are Saved in Blaze at Houghs Neck

Fire early today at Houghs Neck destroyed two buildings and endangered the lives of the children in two families, who were rescued by Policeman Walter Ferguson, who risked his life in climbing wooden stairways already ablaze to save them.

The blaze started in a store owned by William Hanrahan. Hanrahan and his family lived in a tenement over the store. Policeman Ferguson discovered the fire and immediately broke down the door to the tenement and awakened the family. The father carried one of the children out and the policemen the other two.

When he went back after the last one the stairways were ablaze and he brought the child out partly unconscious from smoke.

Ferguson then ran to the adjoining two tenement block and roused the members of the family of W. W. Pemberton. There he found three children panic stricken and suffering from inhaling smoke and brought them safely to the street.

STUDENT NEARLY LOSES LIFE IN INITIATION

Springfield, Feb. 14.—An initiation by one of the fraternities at the Massachusetts Agricultural College in Amherst nearly cost William A. Baker of Irving street, Melrose, a freshman, his life when he became lost in a blinding snowstorm and wandered about in the fields and woods for over six hours.

Baker finally stumbled into the home of George D. Rhodes in Packerville in an exhausted condition.

While he was wandering about in the storm the whole student body was searching for him. They finally located him at Rhodes' home.

The college authorities plan to conduct an investigation of the initiation.

Harvard Doctor Says Milk Often Injures Sight

The Harvard Medical School audience received a shock when Dr. F. H. Verhoeff, lecturing on diseases of the eye, said that impaired sight often came from drinking milk, especially by children.

The effect of tuberculosis germs on the lymph glands of the neck and elsewhere, he said, is generally recognized. Therefore, he said, one should drink only pasteurized milk.

That the prick of a hairpin has often destroyed sight by piercing the lens was another point he made.

Having startled the women by his reference to hat pins, he proceeded to startle the men by telling them that the use of alcohol and tobacco had caused many cases of blindness.

Everyone with normal sight needs glasses by the age of forty-five or thereabouts, he said, but people with near sight, or with near sight in one eye and far sight in the other, may not.

FARMER ROBBED AND BEATEN BY THUGS

North Easton, Feb. 14.—While Walter Sweet, a farmer, was driving alone in a sleigh in a lonely section of Sand street, he was stopped by two men, beaten unconscious with a club and robbed of a roll of bills.

Sweet was jogging his horse along when two strangers approached him. The snow was falling thickly and they were muffled up to their ears. According to the story told by Sweet, one of the men stepped into the middle of the road and, elevating his arm, called upon Sweet to stop.

Sweet pulled his horse to a halt, and as he did the man in the road asked him to change a $5 bill. As he made the request the muffled stranger extended a green back toward Sweet. The later drew a goodsized roll of bills from his pocket and was counting off five ones when one of the men hit him on the head

A Mission and a Million

By Herbert Kaufman

Great fiction is truth dug out of actuality—garbed and illuminated by the interpretive resources of artistry.

Authors must live broadly, deeply, intensely—or their characters are squeaking marionettes, jerking on artificial lines.

Human nature is the Great Adventure. Fate provides all the plots. The astounding romance is Reality.

Novelists do not invent characters; they discover them. Otherwise, they play with waxworks.

There are just so many possible combinations and conflicts of temperament; and so many thousands of pens, from Sophocles to Galsworthy, have already drawn upon them that the conception of a new and logical situation is a labor of infinite insight and observation.

Nothing of literary worth is done in haste.

It is the ambition and purpose of Cosmopolitan to foster and print the ablest in contemporary fiction.

Not "highbrow stuff"—nothing is so tiresome as ornate style. Only a pedant or a prig critic applauds the involutions and grandiloquence of a verbal snob. Men who plainly know what they are doing are plain-spoken.

Genius is always simple; that's what genius is—the gift of translating the Beautiful to Everyman.

Cosmopolitan authors must possess this supreme faculty, or they aren't important enough to be contributors.

Owen Johnson, Gouverneur Morris, Samuel Merwin, Ella Wheeler Wilcox, Elinor Glyn, Robert W. Chambers, and Maurice Maeterlinck, for example, in March Cosmopolitan, are as illustrious a company as our time knows.

But even these surpassing artists could not maintain their existing standards if they diluted their output.

Cosmopolitan, by its far-sighted policy of contracting, wherever possible, for the exclusive services of its distinguished writers and illustrators, enables them to limit their expression, and provides an abundance of leisure for the production of vital, masterly work.

An artist without a definite market must necessarily speculate and turn out an excess amount of promiscuous material, much of which is inferior to his possibilities.

Cosmopolitan has grown because it has afforded opportunities for the biggest writers to surpass themselves.

At the height of their powers, they can devote the most time to the least work. This means concentration, ripe craftsmanship, and the inspiration that springs from the consciousness of self-respecting, whole-souled endeavor.

Cosmopolitan is publishing more of the finished, brilliant, forceful literature of our day than any dozen of its contemporaries—work that will stand on to-morrow's book-shelves.

It has a mission—that's why it has a million.

HUNT MAN WHO PUT ARSENIC IN FOOD

Chicago, Feb. 14.—A State-wide search is being conducted for Jean Crones, who the police believe put 480 grains of arsenic in soup at the banquet of the University Club, given by 300 prominent Chicagoans in honor of Archbishop George W. Mundelein.

Captain Nicholas Hunt of the detective bureau declared that he declared to be a "good clew" when Detective Sergeant Birmingham brought him a letter, written in Italian, that had been picked up in Crones' room.

Captain Hunt would not indicate what the letter said, but put men at work on the information. He sent for John Allegrini, who formerly roomed with Crones and questioned him for an hour. Allegrini was then hurried away to an outlying station, where he was held.

Hinton G. Clabaugh, head of the local Bureau of the Department of Justice, gave the poisoning plot a national aspect when he admitted that operatives from his office are watching a man in an Eastern city in connection with radiating clews brought to light.

COMPLETES ANALYSIS.

Dr. Frederick O. Tonney, director of the City Laboratory, has completed his quantitative analysis of the soup. He finds that the poison averaged one and one-half grains to each three ounces of soup. The portion served each guest at the banquet was between three and four ounces, so that each one who finished his soup, took between one and one-half and two grains of arsenic.

"Numerous tests have proved that two grains is the very minimum amount of arsenic that will kill a human being," said Dr. John Dill Robertson, Commissioner of Health, to whom Dr. Tonney made his report.

"It would seem, therefore, that Crones, if he put the arsenic in the soup, under-calculated a little. This might be explained by the fact that advance press notices of the banquet said that there would be 200 guests, while when the covers were actually laid, there were 307.

TEST OTHER FOOD.

"A pint of soup weighs sixteen ounces. A pint, according to the portion served at the banquet, would be enough for four guests. The quantitative analysis by Dr. Tonney showed three and seven-tenths grains of arsenic to each pint of soup. That works out to the allotment of one and one-half grains per guest.

"Then the soup was served in consomme cups, and this cut down the amount, perhaps, to lower than what Crones planned.

"The arsenic bottle found in Crones' room was empty. It is a one-ounce bottle, or contained, when full, 480 grains, in the form of white oxide of arsenic.

"Dr. Tonney is also making an analysis of the oysters, caviar, fish and wine that were consumed before the general sickness came over the guests. So far there has been no indication of any other virulent poison than arsenic. It will take a week or more to go through all the tests.

War Council in Paris Is to Be Permanent and in Full Control

Each Nation to Surrender Its Own Policy and Accept That Jointly Agreed Upon.

By Andre Beaumont.

BOSTON AMERICAN AND LONDON DAILY TELEGRAPH EXCLUSIVE CABLE SERVICE.

Milan, Feb. 14.—An official communication issued in Rome confirms the news I wired on Thursday that one of the principal objects of Premier Briand's visit to Italy is the constitution of a High Council of the Entente Powers in Paris.

This council is to be ready for a permanent session. Ten days in advance it will notify the respective governments of the subject to be discussed and whenever anything important is to be decided, the council is to meet to discuss it fully and come to a rapid decision upon the course of action.

Unity of views and policy is to be established between the allied governments whose diplomacy will thus represent one idea and one scope—that of securing results with the least loss of time.

The delegates will form part of the council on the express condition that each nation abandons its particular policy and is to have an eye only to the general interests of all the allied nations.

There is to be no longer merely a French, English, Italian or Russian war, each conducted without reference to the others' wars, but one war against one enemy who must be crushed by one common effort.

The conditions on which the four nations will establish the High Council are:

FIRST—The absolute immunity of their respective fronts having been secured by each nation, they must be ready to place at the disposal of the other allies all their remaining forces.

SECOND—There must be a frank and loyal declaration by the allies of the men, material, etc., at their disposal.

THIRD—The High Council will be assisted by representatives of all the general staffs, who will give military advice.

These prime objects having been settled, the Council will discuss the secondary questions between allies—such as trade, industries and finance.

Rome, Feb. 14.—Announcement is made that Sig. Tittoni, Italian Ambassador at Paris, and General Porro, chief of the Italian General Staff, will represent Italy in the war council.

AMERICAN SHIP IS SEIZED FOR BRITISH NAVY

Washington, Feb. 14.—A steamship owned by the United Fruit Company and flying the American flag has been seized in an English port, since its seizure it has been requisitioned for use by the British Admiralty.

The gravity of the whole issue involving the disregard of American registry has been increased by this latest act by Great Britain. The procedure is similar in many circumstances to the refusal to recognize the transfer to American registry of vessels of the American Transatlantic Steamship Company of New York.

The facts in the case are as follows:

The San Pablo, a merchantman built and paid for by the United Fruit Company, was constructed at an English shipbuilding yard.

While the San Pablo was being fitted out in the English port, preparatory to sailing to New York to enter the United Fruit Company's service, she was seized by Great Britain.

This seizure followed the granting by the United States authorities of American registry to the San Pablo.

When the attention of the State Department was called to these facts, it was stated that representations had been sent to Great Britain setting forth the circumstances. These representations followed a formal complaint by the United Fruit Company.

"The answer of Great Britain," said a State Department official, "is that holding the San Pablo and practically confiscating her are justified under the defence of the Realm act, as well as by the acts and decrees prohibiting the exportation of British-built ships."

U. S. Agents Sent to Canadian Line.

By International News Service.

Washington, Feb. 14.—The major portion of the special agents of the secret service and the Department of Justice today are scattered along the Canadian frontier investigating the charges that a widespread Teutonic plot against Canadian institutions is being hatched to completion. Boston, Buffalo and Detroit are alleged to be the headquarters of conspirators who plan to destroy the or the bomb the chief railways and munition plants of the Dominion. They are alleged to have conspirators operating at many points of the international boundary.

While officials claim to be a trifle skeptical as to the extent of the alleged plot, they are taking every precaution to frustrate any movement from this side of the border that might violate the neutrality of the United States.

The very fact that the Canadian government felt impelled to mass troops at all strategic points is proof enough in the minds of officials here that General Staffs of the Canadian militia has received information that he considers authentic of a serious plot against the country. And officials admit that any overt act planned on this side of the border and carried out in Canada would create a most embarrassing situation.

AMERICANS TO BE WARNED OFF ARMED SHIPS

of the Berlin and Vienna admiralties. The general impression among the people of England and in London official circles is that the American government intends to accept the argument of Germany. This is certain to result in the development of tension, more or less acute, between London and Washington.

English correspondents in the American capital caute that the German stand on the arming of merchant vessels is to be accepted almost without reservation by President Wilson and his cabinet, and that Americans are to be warned to avoid hereafter all belligerent merchant ships carrying guns.

It is understood in Washington, they state, that Garrison's real reason for resigning was that he advocated rejection of Germany's submarine decree and the pressing to an immediate conclusion the Lusitania matter, but that he found himself in the minority and decided his position was untenable.

To Warn Americans Off Armed Ships

By International News Service.

Washington, Feb. 14.—The United States will adopt the suggestion of the German government and warn Americans not to take passage on armed merchantmen.

Definite information that this is the intention of President Wilson and that an announcement to this effect will shortly be made by the State Department was forthcoming today from an authoritative source.

In diplomatic circles discussion today centres on the probability of the President taking this course, and its inevitable consequences. Even the most conservative opinion holds that the resultant situation will involve this country in a controversy with Great Britain, which may easily prove to be the most troublesome and embarrassing of any the United States has yet had to face.

No one conversant with the facts in the case goes so far as to forecast anything more serious growing out of the controversy than a loss of foreign trade. But that the United States must expect to suffer seriously in this respect, if the German contention as to armed merchantmen is upheld by this government, is considered inevitable by the best informed statesmen.

This loss, it is pointed out, can be put down as an American asset in the retaliatory measures which it must be expected the allies will promptly take. If the United States prohibits the clearance from its ports of armed merchantmen, the allies may be counted upon to reply by discontinuing the entrance into American ports of all kinds of their merchantmen. Denied the use of allied merchantmen, which now carry almost all the foreign trade of the United States, the seriousness of the loss may be easily calculated.

German diplomats are confident that the United States will support the view that armed merchantmen are in effect warships, in so far as their ability to act on the offensive with submarines is concerned. They declare that recognition by the United States of the justice of their contention will remove the last cause for controversy between the two countries.

ALLIES UNAFFECTED.

According to an official close to the German embassy, the necessary change in regulations, the position of the United States as announced in November, 1914, being that merchant vessels may carry small guns for defensive purposes, cannot be construed adversely, inasmuch as developments in submarine warfare have proved since that time that any armament may be used offensively against a submarine. In this view Great Britain cannot take exception to a change of attitude on the part of this government since no armed merchantmen of British registry enter American ports.

The report that Great Britain will count as a violation of neutrality any change of regulations by the United States is discredited by this official who points out that such a change would not affect adversely any of the allies.

WAR SUMMARY

The fighting in France is becoming steadily more severe. But it is spread over so broad a front, and the offensive is so divided between Teutons and allies, that it is impossible to say just what is the aim of either side.

Paris believes the Germans are feeling out the allied lines, looking for a chance to break through. But this has not been a German method in the war thus far. They have rather laid their plans to break through at a certain definite spot, and then proceeded to do so—or suffer defeat. The present fighting may develop along this line into a tremendous assault at some one point—not improbably against the fortress of Verdun. The attacks of the past two weeks would then appear as ruses to draw the enemy forces away from the threatened point.

Thus far, neither side has made any gain of consequence. The Germans appear to have the advantage.

Petrograd reports repulses for the Germans in the Riga and Dvinsk regions. In the Caucasus, Petrograd says, forts around Erzerum, the Turkish stronghold, were bombarded and an explosion occurred in one. A victory is reported "fifty miles southeast of Erzerum" and a glance at the map shows that Erzerum is still far from surrounded, if fighting occurred as stated by the Russians themselves. This Caucasus campaign by Russia has furnished much good reading for the Russian sympathizers, but its further results have not been important.

In Mesopotamia, the English appear to have suffered a defeat that may prove serious. The Turks claim that at Korna the English were forced to flee. Now Korna is on the Tigris River, well below where the English forces are encamped, and if the Turks gain command of the Tigris at that point the English armies up the river will find their communications cut and themselves dependent on a bare countryside for provisions.

There was some aeroplane activity in the Adriatic and along the Italian coast by Austrian machines.

The French believe their cruiser, the Admiral Charner, has been torpedoed. She carried a crew of 370.

The diplomatic situation, owing to Germany's plan to sink without warning armed merchantmen, is acute. The United States is expected to support Germany's position, and the allies may take retaliatory measures against the United States in the trade world.

CANADA RUSHES TROOPS TO BORDER

Buffalo, N. Y., Feb. 14.—The whole Canadian frontier is bristling with armed men today. After the Toronto detachments were moved forward, the militia department began veiling its movements.

It is known, however, that the entire Eighty-fourth Battalion arrived from Brantford during the night and is now more than 10,000 men either guarding the border near here or held in reserve to be sent to the scene if needed.

Whatever Americans may think about it, the Canadians are fully convinced that a plot exists to begin an invasion of Canada. It is asserted by the Canadians that there are 10,000 Germans and Austrians under arms in Buffalo and that an attack may be expected on the Canadian border towns at any moment.

U. S. INVESTIGATES.

Secret Service agents are here today from Washington to investigate the complaints made by the Dominion authorities.

At Niagara Falls scores of machine guns are trained on the international bridges and hundreds of soldiers are guarding the power-houses and hydro-plants.

At Bridgeburg, just across the river from Buffalo, an entire battalion is on duty guarding the bridge and the munition plants. Additional troops and fifteen machine guns were dispatched to the border from St. Catherines, Thorold and Toronto. Guards at the power-houses, munition plants, railroad yards and bridges were doubled.

The precautionary measures spread to the Canadian Press Bureau, which has become very active.

TROOPS IN READINESS.

Reports were received that 100,000 Canadian troops bivouaced at the exposition grounds in Toronto have received orders to be ready to leave at a moment's notice. Sufficient trains are also in readiness to take them to the border.

It is only a two-hours' trip. The remainder of the garrison at St. Catherines, an hour's ride from the border, is ready to move immediately.

Owing to the rigid regulations imposed by the Canadian censor, papers along the border with Canadian circulations are printing only brief details of reports across the river for fear of an order prohibiting their entry in the Dominion.

SAYS DANIELS IS UNFIT FOR OFFICE

By International News Service.

Newark, N. J., Feb. 14.—An audience of 2,000 howled approval when S. Stanwood Menken, president of the National Security League, said:

"I consider Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy, incompetent and unfit to hold any high office in this land."

Mr. Menken made this remark during a debate with Allen L. Benson, Socialist writer.

Colonel Roosevelt was referred to as an "arch-demagogue" and the sincerity of President Wilson in his program of preparedness was questioned.

SCORE BRITISH FOREIGN OFFICE

London, Feb. 14.—Severe criticism was launched against the British Foreign Office today at a mass meeting called to protest against the inadequacy of the blockade of Germany. It was charged that the Foreign Office is hampering the navy and is allowing goods to reach Germany through neutral ports by means of an agreement with Scandinavian merchants. The government was urged to give the navy fuller power in enforcing the blockade.

HOME SPORT BILL HEARING PLANNED

A hearing is to be given before the Committee on Legal Affairs tomorrow morning on a bill which would make lawful Sunday gardening and home sports. The bill provides that "work in or upon garden, field, farm, dairy, stable or household premises by a person owning or legally occupying the same, or by any member of his family and the playing of any outdoor sport or game by one or more individuals, provided no admission or other fee be charged for attendance at such game or sport, be made lawful."

FIRE HORSES GO TO RED ACRE FARM

Dr. Keogh, the veterinary surgeon of the Fire Department, with the approval of the Mayor and Fire Commissioner, has just sent to Red Acre Farm, the home for horses at Stow, the two oldest horses in the Fire Department. One of these horses is "Jack," a familiar character in the North End. "Jack" has been in the service for fifteen years at the fire station in Salem street. The horse is sound, but old, and when a suggestion of killing him was made the whole community protested.

MORATORIUM FOR MEXICO DEBTORS

Mexico City, Feb. 14.—The Minister of Finance plans to present to Carranza for his approval a proposal to decree a moratorium for two years after the date of the decree and applying to debts due to holders of mortgages throughout the republic. The object is to protect capitalists who have lent good money at par and have received the present depreciated currency in payment.

TAKE HEALD CASE UNDER ADVISEMENT

Superintendent Roderick W. Hine of the Dedham schools said today that the Dedham school committee has taken under advisement the charges against Principal Frank C. Heald. Heald, it is claimed, punished James Hardman, Jr., a boy of twelve, for whispering, by making the boy lie across a desk for almost an hour, till he became ill. The school committee gave a hearing on the case Saturday.

ELEVATED TO ASK FOR NEW TRIAL

Judge Irwin in Dedham Wednesday will hear arguments on the Elevated's petition for a new trial of Wilfred W. Davis' suit against it as a result of the first trial of which a $15,000 verdict was awarded Davis and affirmed by the Supreme Court.

SEES OPPOSITION TO BILLY SUNDAY

The Rev. George G. Dowey of Philadelphia, leader of the men's movement in Billy Sunday's revivals in Philadelphia and Scranton, issued warning to the Roxbury Men's Class Union in the Dudley Street Baptist Church that opposition to Sunday's Boston revivals in October will develop. He urged preparation for this.

As part of the campaign to combat this opposition he urged churches co-operating to issue propaganda preparing people for Sunday's visit. Mr. Dowey declared that 12,000 names had been added to the membership of Philadelphia churches by Billy Sunday and that thousands of men had given up the use of liquor.

M'ADOO DECLINES TO ATTEND CONVENTION

Washington, Feb. 14.—Secretary McAdoo has written Chester C. Platt of Batavia, N. Y., that under no circumstances will he permit the naming of himself as a delegate to the Democratic national convention in St. Louis next June. Mr. Platt had asked the secretary about his attitude. Mr. McAdoo's letter said he felt that delegates should be chosen from men who have "stood in the trenches and fought the battles of the party and have not received official positions."

Tex Rickard's Only Worry Is How to Supply Enough Tickets to Satisfy the Demand.

By ED. CURLEY.

NEW YORK, Feb. 14—This is the big week for the battle of the millions.

Our illustrious heavyweight champion, Jess Willard, this afternoon will take a train in Chicago headed this way.

Tom Jones will invent some other reason for absolutely refusing to allow Willard to fight.

Jess will surely get in trouble with the police authorities for attracting such a crowd while walking our highways.

Some sort of a sensational yarn will emanate from Frank Moran's camp in Saratoga about the big blend stubbing his toe in a snowbank.

Then, when these have subsided, the Boxing Commission will promulgate a ruling that the 7½ per cent. State tax will be chopped off the receipts of Willard's daily stunt at the Pioneer Club.

This is going to be the cloud of a pleasant week.

When the news of the tax is bandied about, piercing shrieks will be heard over this little isle.

So far as can be judged at this moment, there is no question of getting rid of the seats for the big fight. In fact, the only thing that is worrying the promoters is how to get enough seats to satisfy the demand.

It does not matter a whit that this is a ten-round, no-decision bout and that in the old days it was impossible to draw anything near the idea of "Tex" Rickard, even when a finish fight was staged. The seats all would be gobbled up within the next week if they were to be placed on sale now.

With Willard doing his indoor work at the Pioneer Club, it means that all his road work will be done around Central Park. This publicity, as you will agree, won't hurt the attendance or interest in the fight.

It has been many years since any of the shamuers took advantage of our staid park. Tom Sharkey always developed his strength in that direction, principally on the grounds that he was a taxpayer and why spend unnecessary dough for gymnasiums?

Willard will have no difficulty in obtaining sparring partners. There are a number of good, tough beauties who will be glad to work out with the champion.

ELLIS IS NEXT FOE OF DE ORO FOR TITLE

The next match for the world's three-cushion carom championship will be played in Philadelphia, Feb. 23, 24 and 25. Sol Allinger made an offer for the contest and Alfredo De Oro, champion, accepted on behalf of himself and Charles Ellis, challenger.

Ellis, leader leading the Interstate League, has won his last seven games. He recently made a run of 11 in a championship game.

SEVEN BOXMEN ARE IN RUDOLPH'S CLASS

Williamstown, Feb. 14.—"Dick" Rudolph of the Braves is giving the Williams College battery candidates light work in the cage. Delvecchio, Foster, G. S. Young, Richardson, Allan, Bush and Murdock are the pitchers at work, while Powell, Spencer and Hamlin comprise the list of catchers. Young is expected to prove Williams' mainstay on the mound.

NEW BEDFORD GETS ERTLE-SHUBERT GO

Providence, Feb. 14—Johnny Ertle of St. Paul, claimant of the bantamweight title, and Al Shubert, the New England champion, have signed to meet in a fifteen-round bout at New Bedford, Mass., February 22. They have contracted to come in at 116 pounds, ringside. A local sporting man is acting as stakeholder.

DEAL TO DISPLACE AUSTIN ON BROWNS

St. Louis, Feb. 14.—Manager Fielder Jones of the Brown Sox has definitely decided to play "Chuck" Deal, the ex-Brave, on the third bag the coming season. Wivers were asked on Jimmy Austin a week ago and thus far he has not been claimed.

WILLARD FIT, HE SAYS

Could Not Refuse $47,500 Offer

NEAR RIGHT WEIGHT

Written Expressly for the Boston American.

By JESS WILLARD.

(Heavyweight Champion of the World).

It's going to be a lot of hard work this settling down to training, but a man can put in a lot of work when he's going to get $47,500 for boxing ten rounds. My original intention was not to box in March, but the offer was too tempting to refuse.

There were a lot of people that had an idea that I needed more time to get in good shape, but those folks forget that I have been doing a little work right along in Chicago.

When it settles down to getting in condition, I believe in taking matters slowly, otherwise you work yourself up into a nervous state, which never helps matters along. With work I have done and the few weeks allowed for me to train in New York, I'll be in grand condition when I face Moran on March 8.

MONAHAN TO HELP.

Within a few days I will have Walter Monahan and a few other clever trainers in New York to get me going on the fast grind. And you can bet they are the boys that will keep me busy and working like a beaver.

As far as my weight is concerned when I enter the ring I think it will be close to 240 pounds. That isn't much for a big fellow as I. The day I whipped Johnson in Havana you know I weighed 230 pounds, and it seems to me that I did pretty good carrying all that flesh. One thing, please remember, I'm not as heavy as people imagine.

Here's an idea that may have occurred to a lot of people, but I never saw it in print. If a man wants to keep from getting fat, he ought to keep out of gymnasiums. Of course, a man can't stay in a gymnasium all his life, and as soon as he quits work he's bound to take on a tremendous amount of flesh.

TRAINING HARD WORK.

Now, my case wasn't so much different. Though I was out in the open all Summer, and way up into the Fall, as soon as I quit and sat still for a time I could just feel myself getting swelled up. And now that I am at the task of getting it off I find it pretty hard work.

Road work is the hardest thing of all to go through with. Just when you are ready to quit in disgust, thinking that you have done enough, you discover that you have about three miles more to go to complete the task you set for yourself before starting out. It's a fierce grind, especially for a fellow who's past the youthful, ambitious stage.

My training for this contest won't be materially different from what I went through at both El Paso and at Havana. I'll need more speed this time. Then I trained for endurance. This time, because the distance is shorter, I'll try to make myself as fast as possible.

BOXING BRIEFS and GOSSIP

HERE goes for mention of the worst squawk of the season. Jack Asher, Phil Bloom's manager, is the author. Writes that gent: "Leonard never knocked Bloom out in Boston and the referee had no right to stop it unless Bloom was counted out.

"I DO not want to take any credit away from Leonard, but where there is any important fight, and where a man is still on his feet balking, what right has a referee to stop the fight, unless there was some influence used?

"I SAY that for this reason the club officials had no right to introduce Billy Gibson, Leonard's manager, in the ring before the fight took place.

"IN their last three fights Bloom made a sucker of Leonard, and if Leonard will only consent to fight Bloom again before a New York club you will soon know why Leonard detested Bloom in Boston and not in New York."

ALL of which is pithy pifle of the most brazenest hue ever penned.

NOTHING doing at the Hippodrome tomorrow night. Matchmaker Ivy Lewis announces he has several Australian-number-one bouts all but closed and that the bills February 22 and 29 will prove just about the banner pair of the season.

LEO FLANZBAUM writes the AMERICAN, stating that he stands willing to match Tommy Flanagan, whom he claims has every license to be rated New England's featherweight champion, with "Mickey" Brown on a winner-take-all basis.

THE Massachusetts Automobile Operators' Association has an amateur show underlined for its quarters, No. 585 Boylston street, Wednesday evening. Entries close at 6 p. m. today with Jerry Moore at the club house. There will be bouts (open) in the 108 and 125-pound classes.

NEW YORK BOXING BITS

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—Madison Square Garden and the Broadway Sporting Club are both after another Jack Dillon-"Battling" Levinsky contest.

GEORGE ALGER, the Cambridge mill artist, has finally been selected as Jimmy Coffey's opponent in the star event at Troy, N. Y., next Monday night.

FRANK MULKERN and Ben Steinel, the Milwaukee heavyweights, have set March 2, as the date for the return clash between Freddie Welsh and Ad Wolgast.

THAT fifteen-round bout between Johnny Kilbane and George Chaney of Baltimore is still hanging fire. The featherweight champion is willing to meet the Baltimore artist, but will not do so at the club controlled by Sammy Harris and Bleiser. It looks as if Jimmy Dougherr, who has offered a $10,000 purse, will finally land the bout.

FREDDIE WELSH and Phil Bloom have been signed up for a ten-round bout at the Broadway Sporting Club, Brooklyn, February 29.

SAMMY WALTZ, the Connecticut bantam, will have an opportunity to prove his claim that his recent knockout at the hands of "Battling" Lahn was a fluke. These boys have been rematched to box twelve rounds at the Liberty A. C. of East Hartford, Ct., Washington's Birthday.

CLARK NAMED BY PURPLE.

Williamstown, Feb. 14.—William Dearborn Clark, '14, of San Francisco, has been elected Frederick Tomkins' successor as captain of the Williams College swimming team. Tomkins graduated at mid-years. Davis, a freshman, is the sensation of the squad.

Splendid Finish Saves Fry His Cue Title

S. H. Fry is once more the amateur billiard champion of England.

Competing in the Billiard Association's tournament, he won the title January 27, when he defeated G. A. Heginbotom of Manchester, 2,000 to 1,417. He came near failing to qualify for the final contest.

H. A. Evans appeared to have him beaten when the scores were 949 to 794. Safety tactics by Evans proved that player's undoing.

Fry, playing for everything possible, made moderate breaks, supplemented with 88 and 49, tied the score at 983 and eventually won by 17 points.

LEWIS AND BRITTON LOSE GARDEN DATE

New York, Feb. 14—Jimmie Johnston has lost the Lewis-Britton match at the Garden. The Garden Commission holding that the Broadway Sporting Club, Brooklyn, had a prior right to the battle. So the two welterweights will exchange wallops across the bridge tomorrow night. Johnston has signed Sam Langford and Sam McVea for a ten-round combat at the Garden Thursday night.

KILBANE TO BOX CREELEY

Hot Springs, Ark., Feb. 14.—Hot Springs will have an opportunity to give Johnny Kilbane, the featherweight champion, the chance over when he clashes with Johnny Creeley of Cincinnati Wednesday night. The bout is scheduled to go ten rounds.

HARVARD PERSONALS

HOWARD HULL, the best 145-pound wrestler in Sam Anderson's string, is on the sick list and was unable to compete against Princeton in Saturday's meet in Jersey.

GEORGE HAYDOCK'S vault of 12 feet 5 inches established a new record for pole-toppling in the baseball cage. Haydock should develop fast under the astute eye of Fred Powers.

RUSS AYRES, the 1915 baseball captain, who was forced to resign without playing a game, because of an operation, but college Saturday for his home at Montclair, N. J. Ayres, while eligible for diamond performance, preferred to hustle out and get a job. He finished the courses necessary for his degree the past week.

HERRICK STARTS WORK

Harvard Crew Candidates Answer First Call Today—Soucy Plans Turning Out.

WITH the reopening of Harvard today for the second semester a big boom in sports is due.

The first call for candidates for the varsity and freshman crews is answered this afternoon, when more than 150 men are expected to greet Coaches Herrick and Haines, who have been chosen to put Harvard rowing back in winning channels.

Herrick will talk to the boys today stress on the fact that Yale must be beaten this year. Harvard loses but two men from its first eight of last Spring. Three six-oar varsity veterans reporting will be "Chick" Laird, Cabot, Ken Parson, the big football player; Jim Middendorf, Ted Stebbins and Dana Morgan.

Soucy, the football and, who rowed in the first crew two years ago, may also report to Herrick. Quentin Roosevelt is expected to be on hand to try for a place in the freshman eight.

Haines will have full charge of the individual instruction of the varsity and freshman first and second crews; Herrick selecting the crews and dividing the coaching necessary to make the eights row a finish stroke.

Lew Saltonstall, captain of the Harvard second crew, which won the English Henley two years ago, will coach the third and fourth freshman crews.

"The entrants for the boxing team will take their strength tests today, and will weigh in Wednesday afternoon when the preliminary bouts are drawn to be pulled off."

Coach Fred Mitchell will have a chance to talk to some of his baseball charges at a meeting in the Varsity Club tonight. Eddie Mahan, "Bill" Hale and Bob Fisher are being mentioned as the best of the available pitching material. Mahan is a good pitcher, but Hale, who twirled last year, had a great scholastic record.

"Dick" Harte will be the varsity backstop, barring accidents and probation; Tom Rowsight is being mentioned as possible catching proposition, but will have to remove scholastic difficulties before he can join the team.

The fencers and wrestlers have meets booked later in the week.

LEONARD TO MEET WELSH

Jimmie Johnston Seeks to Stage Bout at Garden This Month—Benny Forging to Front.

By ED CURLEY.

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—Freddie Welsh, lightweight champion, is back in town. Freddie arrived after an arduous trip of a few weeks as an actor.

As Freddie put it without any egotism: "They say I can't fight and now they say I can't act as an actor. What's a fellow going to do?"

The most important feature of the return of the well-known cosmopolite is that the lightweight division will start seething at once. There isn't a lightweight in the business who doesn't desire a bout with Welsh, and, speaking from Welsh's standpoint, there isn't a lightweight Jo doesn't desire to battle.

Billy Gibson, who manages Benny Leonard, is two jumps behind H. Con Pollok, manager of the champ, besseching the latter for a match for Benjamin.

There's one thing to be said in favor of Benny—he figures to be able to give Freddie a tough battle. Leonard has youth, speed and the wallop in his favor. Of course, Welsh has speed, and, what's more necessary, the old gray matter that has carried him through many hard battles.

It is the earnest wish of James Jay Johnston, the manager of the Garden, to stage a Welsh-Leonard bout, for it would be a corking attraction. Also it would start Freddie off here with a worthy opponent.

When Leonard dropped Joe Mandot for the fatal toll and stepped Phil Bloom he showed he carried the kick. As for cleverness there are few around here that figure in Benny's class.

Peter the Great Not Top Purchase

WHEN Peter the Great, 2,07[illegible], the noted trotting stallion, was sold by W. E. D. Stokes of New York, to Stoughton J. Fletcher of Indianapolis, for $50,000 last week, a lot of people gasped, being positive the sale established a high-water mark.

Far from it, as the appended table shows:

Horse.	Year	Age.	Price.
Axtell, 2:08¾	1892	3	$125,000
Axtell, 2:12	1889	3	105,000

BLACK BACK IN GOOD STANDING AT YALE

New Haven, Ct., Feb. 14.—Captain Clinton Black of the Yale varsity eleven passed the semi-annual scholarship examinations the past week with flying colors, succeeding in removing the disqualifications with which he had been handicapped of late weeks. As a result there is no longer any danger of Black being banished from Yale athletics and losing his football appointment.

CHAPPELLE AN INDIAN

Birse Ruling Is Reversed by U.S.F.A.

After an eight-hour session the appeal committee of the United States Football Association voted to lift the suspension placed on Treasurer Archibald Birse of Chicago by the Peel Challenge Cup Commission.

By this decision Chicago receives full recognition and danger of a break between the different sectional organizations is past.

The appeal committee, in a statement on its action, said:

"The action of the Peel Challenge Cup Commission in suspending Archibald Birse is reversed and the suspension lifted for the reasons that the Peel Challenge Cup Commission has failed to produce sufficient evidence to warrant the action taken by it in regard to Birse and because of the failure of the commission to establish the existence of a satisfactory set of rules governing that organization.

"That Archibald Birse be required to submit for inspection and examination by the commission any vouchers or cancelled checks in his possession showing the disbursement of monies in behalf of the commission."

The members of the committee who heard the appeal were: Douglas Stewart of Philadelphia, second vice-president United States Football Association; William D. Love of Pawtucket, R. I., third vice-president United States Football Association; Andrew M. Brown of Yonkers, N. Y., president American Football Association; William W. Davidson, vice-president Utah Football Association; George M. Collins, secretary North Massachusetts and New Hampshire Football Association, of Boston; John A. Fernley of Pawtucket, R. I., president United States Football Association, and Thomas W. Cahill of New York, secretary United States Football Association.

At the National Councils meeting, which followed the hearing of the Birse appeal, it was voted to admit officials of the Chicago and District Football League into the governing body of the association.

The national cup committee's draw for the fourth round is as follows: CLEVELAND AND CHICAGO DISTRICT: Thistles of Cleveland vs. Packards, McDuffs or Hyde Park Blues of Chicago.

New York and Western Penn: West Hudsons of Newark vs. Bethlehem of Pennsylvania.

CONNECTICUT AND NEW YORK: Bridgeport vs. Continentals of New York.

MASSACHUSETTS: New Bedford vs. Fall River Rovers.

The games will be played on the grounds of the first named club.

TWO TIDY SETS OF GAMES

Huntington School and B. A. A. Making Lavish Preparations for Schoolboys' Meets.

By JOHN W. MORAN, JR.

ON the two succeeding Saturdays track meets will be held in Boston in which only schoolboys will compete.

The first, next Saturday, is known as the Greater Boston Interscholastic track meet and will be held under the auspices of the Huntington School, at the Y. M. C. A. The following Saturday the B. A. A. holds its twenty-seventh annual meet for the boys.

On the program at the Huntington School meet there will be 50 and 300-yard dashes, 600 and 1,000-yard runs, shot put, high jump, 45-yard high hurdle, mile run, relay races, each boy running 300 yards, and a special midget relay race, with each boy going 150 yards.

Gold, silver and bronze medals will be awarded the first three scoring in each event and a bronze medal will go to each relay runner. In addition a silver loving cup goes to the school winning the most points—the trophy must be won three times for permanent possession—and a silk banner goes to the school winning the meet.

CARD FOR B. A. A. GAMES

At the B. A. A. games the usual scratch events, 40-yard dash, 200, 600, 1000 and mile runs; 45-yard high hurdle; running high jump and shot put are scheduled, in addition to the relay races. The feature relay will unquestionably be that which brings together Exeter and Andover.

Practically every public and preparatory school in this section will be represented in the relay races. Entries for the meet close next Saturday with George V. Brown at the B. A. A. In each event, aside from the 1,000-yard and mile runs, each school is entitled to enter three boys. In those two events they may enter but two and only one of the pair can start.

Three prizes are awarded in each event and a solid silver cup goes to the school scoring the most points. First place will count five points, second, three, and third, one. In the relay races five points will go to the team making the fastest time; four and one-half points to the team, winner or loser, making the next best time, and for the next best time one-half point less until the half-point is exhausted.

HANDSOME POINT CUP.

The point cup will be contested for during five years, the winning school to hold it for each year, and at the conclusion of five years the school having won it the greatest number of times shall be declared the holder of it permanently. In event of new records being made three additional points will go to the school whose athlete creates them.

Through the merger of the Greater Boston Public School meet and the Huntington School meet it is expected the winning team next Saturday will be looked upon as the championship holder of both the public and private schools of Greater Boston.

Though it was originally announced that the entry list would close last Saturday there is strong evidence for belief they will remain open until Wednesday. On that day the drawings for heats will be held at the Y. M. C. A. at 3 p. m.

Huntington School does not enter its team in this meet and indications are that some one of the Boston public schools will annex the title. Already English High has sent in twenty entries and the chances are that Coach Dan O'Flaherty will again pull out a winner. His team annexed the public school championship last year.

Both Newton and Medford will push English hard for the premier honors, as both schools have strong teams this Winter. Roberts of Newton is one man who is expected to bring points to Coach Allie Dickinson. It looks as if Roberts would win the hurdles and high jump. When Adams, Newton, meets Bingham, Cambridge, in the 600-yard run, there is bound to be a fine race.

Yale Is Up in Air As to Outcome of Finding

New Haven, Ct., Feb 14.—The cases of the five Yale athletes who have been under the ban all Fall and Winter, are still up in the air. In some quarters it is stated that the decision of the special committee does not reinstate them at the end of a year's time and that another wrangle must be gone through next Fall.

The Yale Daily News, however, states that the athletes have already been declared eligible to join Yale teams next Fall. It says editorially:

That a distinct hardship, a seeming injustice to the individual men who violated not the spirit, but the letter of the law, and that unintentionally and acting on the advice of others, has been inflicted by the operation of the committee's decision is, we feel, clearly apparent. But that no dishonor of any sort attaches itself to the ruling is likewise self-evident. For this decision does not impair the amateur standing of the men involved and those of the five men who do not graduate this Spring will be allowed to represent Yale in athletics after the opening of college next Fall.

OCT. 12 IS DATE OF B. C.-FORDHAM GAME

Boston College is back on Fordham's football schedule. The game, just booked, is carded to be played in New York on October 12.

FOILED!

"Ha! Ha! Ha!"

It was the voice of J. Mortimer Gallua, president of the suspender trust, as he laughed at the department auto bandits. He had been held up and robbed on a deserted road more than 125 yards from the nearest cabaret.

"Ha! Ha! Ha!" His voice rang out again as the chauffeur cranked up the twelve-cylinder limousine.

"Ha! Ha! Ha!" he laughed again, leaning against the concrete fence and spanking to the amber moon and all others within hearing distance of his voice. "They nicked me for my 18-carat stone, and got my wife's $125,000 necklace and my daughter's $62,375 lavalliere and $12,745.85 in cash, but the goldarn fools overlooked the one best bet. They went away and left us with a gallon of gasoline."

The motor car went whirring on its way into the night, but in the lengthening distance could be heard a raucous but jubilant voice:

"Ha! Ha! Ha! They overlooked the gasoline!"

Despite reports to the contrary, we never have noticed any fluctuations on the price of seats in Hill Du Hirst never charges us any more than two for a quarter.

The publicity man, whether it be in boxing or baseball or football or six-day racing, or any other form of felony, is always afflicted with enlargement of the imagination. Of course, if Doc Krone or Lou Tomkisky is in attendance there is always a large crowd in the house; but, using Hugh Fullerton's scientific mode of figuring, the average 25,000 crowd amounts to approximately 8,546½ human beings and a lot of newspaper men. As a war correspondent somewhere in France might write: "A sentry on Hill 146 was attacked by two Germans last night. They were repulsed, with tremendous losses, leaving 600 dead, 1,240 prisoners and a great amount of munitions."

Bill Shakespeare was an expert on the subject of names, but he died too soon. He never lived to learn that Steve Angel is a wrestling promoter.

SAFETY FIRST.

"Skating," said the chubby person,
As he rubbed his aching spine,
"Skating on an icy surface
May be sport, but not for mine!

"I have found a softer pastime
Where I neither flip nor flop,
When I need some recreation
I go out and shoot a cop."

SUCH BEING THE CASE, ALL IS WELL.

(A communication.)

"Ragnar Omtvedt, the world's champion ski jumper, will make his last jump on Sunday at Cary Hill under Nansen auspices. Henry Hall from Steamboat Springs outjumped Ragnar Omtvedt at Glenwood ski tourney last Saturday, thereby gaining the professional championship. Henry Hall will compete at Cary slide next Sunday. His brother Carl will also give Omtvedt a run for his money. Andrew Olson, the new amateur champion, which he wrestle from Sigurd Bergersen at Glenwood will also compete at Cary meet. The hill is in a perfect condition and if the weather will continue this way, one will see the fastest ski meet yet held any place. One will see the riders go about 61 miles an hour through the air."

C. C. Pell Flays Crane Three Sets in Row

TUXEDO PARK, N. Y., Feb. 14—Clarence C. Pell of Tuxedo yesterday defeated Joshua Crane of Boston in the final round of the gold racquet trophy in straight games, 15-8, 15-1, 15-3.

By his victory Pell won outright the racquet put up by the Tuxedo Tennis and Racquet Club, having acquired three legs on the trophy.

The first gold racquet presented for competition was won in 1907 by Clarence MacIlvy and the second went to J. Gordan Douglas in 1912. Harold F. McCormick of Chicago had one leg on the trophy won by Pell.

Yesterday's match was an easy victory for the Tuxedo champion. He did not have to exert himself, although the Bostonian played in fine form in spots. However, Pell was on top at every stage of the game.

PEARSON RETAINS HIS SQUASH TITLE

Baltimore, Feb. 14.—Stanley W. Pearson of Philadelphia retained his title as the national amateur squash champion by scoring in the finals over Dr. Cooper R. Drewry of Baltimore on the B. A. C. courts. Pearson's all-round play was little short of phenomenal. He won in straight games, 15—8, 15—10, 15—10. Philadelphia racqueters won all five matches.

What Happened to Jane

Edward Sanderson Hears the News and Goes to Milton to Help His Former Sweetheart.

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

CHAPTER LX.

Copyright, 1916, Star Company.

EDWARD SANDERSON had read of the gruesome tragedy in the city papers.

At first he found it hard to believe the evidence of his own senses. As a rule he shunned the stories such as this. He had no morbid taste for the horrible. But just as he was about to turn his eyes away from the details of the murder of a wealthy farmer up the State," the name of the place in which the crime had been committed seemed to start up out of the print and strike him.

"Milton" he exclaimed. The name brought with it a flood of memories, and for a moment he looked out of the window of his office at the strip of blue sky that showed above the top of the brick building next door. Ah, would he ever forget? Would those bitter-sweet memories ever cease to stab and wound?

He glanced again at the paper. It would be odd if the name of the person who had been killed were one which he recalled. He thought he had forgotten everybody in Milton except the one person who had filled all his horizon. Nobody else mattered. And she was worse than dead to him.

And then he read the name of the man she had married. He was glad he was alone now, for the walls of the little office in which he was seated swam and swayed strangely. He grasped the edge of his desk with both hands and read on, his eyes wide and dark, his face pale and his breath coming fast.

Dead! Murdered! And Jane—what about Jane? He must know! He MUST know!

PREOCCUPATION

This thought possessed him day and night. He ate little and slept less for the next few days. He knew a newspaperman who had been put on this case. Sanderson sought him out and tried to make him talk.

It was through him that he learned of the horrible suspicion that was growing in Milton. He learned, too, that perhaps the suspected wife would never be brought to trial, that she was so ill that she might die.

Of course he, Edward Sanderson, knew that it was all a hideous mistake, just as that wicked marriage had been. He had never been able to believe that Jane had sold herself—until his letters to her had come back unopened. He had sometimes wondered since her marriage if she had really known of these offers. For he had written several times after getting back his first unopened letter, but all his communications had been returned. He had even sent Jane a note a few days before he met her and Reeves walking on Fifth avenue. When he saw her with Reeves there he knew that she was married and had never written to her after that.

Now, however, he must know the truth. And one day he boarded a train for Milton.

He wondered afterward how he had endured the hours spent in that journey out there and back, and the ordeal of seeing and talking to her father in the room in which he had sat and talked with her in days that were dead.

The lure of the Spring was over the land on this afternoon in early May. The buds on the forest trees were beginning to swell. The grass was a light green; the smell of growing things was in the air. A blushing few over the little lawn in front of the Hardy house as Sanderson went up the path.

His talk with Ezra—how changed he a bent, old man—was brief. Ned had said little by way of introduction, but had demanded bluntly that the father knew of those letters which had been returned unopened.

THE POSSIBILITY

Ezra, never strong in character, was now too broken and subdued to resent the young man's manner and speech, and made a clean breast of the whole affair, withholding nothing, softening nothing. What difference could it make? Augustus was dead—Jane might be going to die.

His voice broke as he spoke of this last possibility, and Sanderson laid a gentle hand on the bowed shoulders.

"Please God she'll get well!" he murmured, his throat contracting painfully.

But even as he said it he remembered what life might mean to her, what horror of anguish she might have to face. If he could only help her, could only let her know that he would believe in her in spite of the whole world.

"If there is any change, will you send me word?" he begged when he was leaving the house.

Ezra looked at him curiously, and something he saw in the frank eyes smote him as he remembered how he had deceived this man. He must have loved Jane very much, he thought weakly.

"Yes, yes, I'll let you know. I'll let you know," the father promised.

As Edward Sanderson went softly down the steps, he heard a low moan from the room over the porch where the window was stretched wide open. He recollected that this used to be Jane's room.

A mist came to his eyes and he clenched his hands until the nails bit into the flesh. That this thing should have come to HER—the sweetest, the dearest—oh, he could not bear it!

When he had reached his own rooms and sat down to think he tried to derive some comfort in reflecting that, after all, Jane had never returned his letters to him.

She had been sacrificed to a conscienceless suitor and to a weak father.

"Between them they've crushed her, killed her—my darling! my darling!" he groaned.

And although he was a great, strong man, he was not ashamed when he broke down and sobbed like a woman.

Daily Cooking Suggestion

LEMON PIE

Two cups sugar (small), 2 heaping tablespoons cornstarch, grated rind of 2 lemons, yolks of 3 eggs.

Mix and beat well, then add 2 cups of water, juice of 2 lemons and a piece of butter the size of an egg. Cook all this in a double boiler until it is very thick.

Bake the crust and when done pour in the filling. Beat the whites to a stiff froth and add 2 tablespoonfuls of confectioner's sugar, cover the pie with this and put back in the oven until it is a light brown. This makes a large and very thick pie. MRS. HENRY L. CROSS.

Lines to My Heart — By Jane McLean

YESTERDAY my heart was heavy
With a weight of ice and show;
Now it holds a priceless treasure
That my soul must feel and know.
And the gate that once was fastened
Swings full careless to and fro.

YESTERDAY my heart was cheerless;
Now it glimmers with the shine
Love has caught from dreams and woven
Into draperies rare and fine,
And its fortress holds a woman,
What a priceless Valentine!

"YESTERDAY!" The word holds visions
Of a world that once was gray,
And I grasp with eager fingers
Love himself and bid him stay—
Lest I lose my dear possessions
In a dream of yesterday.

The Manicure Lady

She and Wilfrid Go in for the Current Fad of Skating

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

"I WAS skating last night," said the Manicure Lady, "I wish I could skate better, George. It is the poetry of motion if it is did right; but the way I skate is more like blank verse."

"It's just like every other craze," said the Head Barber. "About the time you get it down fine something else will come along and you will have to begin learning that. Life is too short to be all the time learning something new."

"But skating is such grand exercise, George. Wilfred has went in for it, the way he goes in for everything new. He wrote a poem about skating. It goes like this:

"I dearly love over the ice to glide,
With a charming companion by my side.
Our keen skates bite into the ice
And the sharp wind fans her cheeks so nice,
I sometimes dream and hope and plan
That after my next life has began
With some sweet girl I may skate and skate,
Part of the time, at any rate."

"If he keeps on writing poetry like that," said the Head Barber, "he will go to a place where there ain't no ice to skate on. All the poets go to Heaven, and all the people that think they are poets go to the other town."

"Well," said the Manicure Lady, "the ones that go to your other town that they tell about won't have no trouble finding a barber if they need a shave."

"I suppose not," said the Head Barber. "They might even be able to get their nails fixed up in a pinch. But speaking about the skating craze, it sure must have the town pretty tight in its grip when it has the wife going. She is trying to get me interested in it, but I done all my skating when I was a boy. Maybe when I get old and childish I'll give it another whirl."

"Sure, you will," said the Manicure Lady. "It takes the old gents for the pomps and vanities of this wicked world. There is more old gents comes in here to have their nails did than young men, though goodness knows the young men needs it more, being less dude-like than them old bezus.

"I had one customer yesterday that must have been eighty. He was a regular old flirt, too. Most of them old Beau Brummels is. They give me a pain. They better look out, or I'll marry one of them some day before he can catch his breath."

"That's what you ought to do, kiddo, marry a rich old guy, as long as you don't love no other young fellow and can't marry me."

"You and me would never wed, George," said the Manicure Lady firmly. "I wouldn't even be a sister to you. You talk too much."

"You can talk yourself," said the Head Barber, "but you have one of them kind here girls, I am sure, most of the time you don't hurt my feelings none. I don't pay enough attention to your chatter."

"Some day," said the Manicure Lady, "when I am married and have somebody worth talking to he will pay attention to me. You bet he will pay attention. There comes a customer for you, George. Don't cut him on that beak. It looks cute with that big bump on it."

He Got the Horse.

A wet Sunday is a trying time for small boys and girls, and still more so for their parents. On one such day little Donald was very fidgety.

First, he asked his mother if he could play with his bricks.

"No, no!" was the shocked reply. "You don't play with bricks on Sunday!"

In turn his trumpet, his drum and ball were also banned. The little chap was silent for a short time, then he asked for his horse.

"No, no, sonny," admonished his mother. "Horses don't work on Sunday."

"But mother," argued Donald, "mine's a milkman's horse!"

Buck Has to Make a Momentous Decision and Goes to Anna for Help

Novelized from the Play by Edgar Selwyn, Now Running at the Park Square Theatre.

Copyright, 1916, by International News Service, Sole Owners of Serial Rights

By ANN LISLE

WITH jaunty coldblooded[illegible] Walter started for the centre door, and even as he advanced toward it, the sound of a police whistle was heard, followed by the quick shuffle of feet running down the hall.

"Grab him, Dave!" cried Buck, acting his part along the lines of the inspiration that had come to him a moment before.

With rash good will the partners seized Jap, and even while he was struggling the door burst open and the voice of the officer was heard demanding, "Put up your hands—all of you! The whole gang—eh? Well, this is some haul. A clean blow, eh?"

"You were just in time, officer. He was getting the best of us," remarked Mr. Ryder smoothly.

"Who are you?" demanded the officer.

"My name is Ryder—manager for Mr. Braden here."

"Who's Mr. Braden?" asked the officer.

BRADEN IS FOUND WITH THE MONEY ON HIM

"I'm Mr. Braden," replied Dave as quickly that Walter had only a chance to protest. "Don't believe them. They're a couple of crooks," before the officer descended from the watchman, who had entered with him. "See your boss here?"

"That's Mr. Braden over there," said the watchman, pointing unsuspiciously to Dave.

"Who's this fellow?" "Mr. Walter—he works here."

"I tell you he's making a mistake," cried Jap. "Send for Mr. Rice. He'll identify me."

"We caught him robbing the safe," announced Dave quietly.

"Did he get anything?" questioned the officer.

And now Buck's plan revealed itself in all its dangerous ingenuity.

"Yes," said he, "the payroll—he's got it on him now."

And a later moment Jap Walter found himself taken into custody with the added ignominy of having the roll of bills he had abstracted from the Hewitt safe handed to Dave Fulton by a pleasant officer, who remarked even as he led the rightful heir to the Hewitt estate away, "You had better take charge of this money, Mr. Braden."

The young partners to crime turned and looked at each other. Fate certainly seemed to be playing into their hands.

But Fate was playing a lone hand, and she sat on high and chuckled as she lifted the next card. It was marked. It was a queen of hearts, and its like lay in the other decks scattered about her. The crux in the whole affair lay in where that queen of hearts should fall. Again we revert to our old puzzle—find the woman.

"Yes, we might as well go," returned Buck. But somehow he had suddenly lost all desire to come or go. Anna's point of view was not at all clear to Buck, and his inability to tell how she felt clouded his own vision; he scarcely knew how he himself felt.

"We might as well go," he repeated again dully, and the young conspirators switched off the light and stole out of the office.

A moment later Anna came into the darkness and stood staring about almost as if she expected the still gloom to project something before her eyes. Her faith in Buchanan Ryder was gone, but her love refused to go too. Alone there in the darkness she remembered the promise she had given to Buchanan Ryder—the promise to "stick" whatever befall. "For better, for worse," she murmured to herself quietly, and then she wondered if that meant in spite of the fact that a man was a thief and an unmitigated cheater. The whole problem seemed too big for her.

It seemed to press on her there in the gloom and shut her off from a world of happy women who had no such cruel question to face. At last she, too, stole out of the office and the door clicked shut after her. Again the Hewitt office lay in still darkness, unmarked by anything that had befallen it that night, quiet and silent—waiting for what the morning would bring. Buck and Dave hurried down to the station to pay for the tickets they had had laid aside hours before. Up to the reservation window they walked, and then quickly Buck caught Dave's arm and dragged him away.

"I can't do it, Dave. I can't do it. I won't go unless Anna does. I'll have to see her first and find out what her point of view is. Come on home and turn this money over to Anna. We're responsible for it and unless Anna sees her way clear to come along after she knows the whole story I won't go."

DAVE PUTS UP A POSER TO BUCK

"But what will you do if Anna won't come?" asked Dave. "I've told Norma to be at the house at 9 and ready to travel."

"I'll stay and take my medicine, Dave, I get you into this and if you feel like going—I'll understand. But I won't let you take Norma unless she wants to go after she knows the whole truth. You go if you like, though, boy."

Dave looked at the older man for a moment or two and then a flicker of determination came across his face. "And leave you to face it alone? What do you think I am?"

The walk to the Brannigans' house seemed one long nightmare to Dave Fulton. He could scarcely have felt more guilty if he had committed murder, and in the midst of all his indecision and unhappiness the older man was almost amused at the way Dave cowered in fear before his trouble. In the Brannigan parlor stood Anna—tall and slender, like some figure of justice. "Miss Nogga is waiting for you up in my room, at the head of the stairs," she said to Dave Fulton. "I haven't told her anything."

Dave dashed up the stairs, putting into his hasty going part of his desire to see Norma and part of his nervous desire for action of any sort.

"Well, Buck," asked Anna quietly. "It's mighty good of you to see me, Anna. I was afraid you wouldn't."

"I want to give you every chance," said the girl quietly.

"First I want to explain what happened after you left." Buck moistened his dry lips nervously and sent up a quick little prayer for inspiration to give his words such eloquence that they should speak to the heart of the girl who stood before him with an expression of stern impersonality draining all the youth and light from a face that had once looked on him illumined by love.

"You needn't—I was in the other room and heard everything—what have you done with the money?" demanded the girl.

"I have it—oh, don't be afraid. I'm not going to keep it, but I want you to know how it all happened. I admit we've done wrong, but it was only in the beginning. I was desperate for a chance to prove myself, and when this boy came along and you said you'd stick whatever happened"— began Buck calmly enough; and then memory gripped him.

He felt again the soft warmth of Anna's figure as she clung to him and throbbed in the circle of his arms. Again he felt his lips pressed to hers, and a wild desire to end this discussion in the old man and woman way came over him.

He took a quick step toward her and then the cold look of waiting—of judgment—suspended on her face stopped him almost as if there were a tangible barrier between them. "It was in this room, Anna, remember?" he ventured.

But Anna refused to remember anything except that truth and honor were unknown to Buchanan Ryder. "You should have told me then," she said.

"I didn't stop to think. Everything came so easy. I didn't think we were harming anybody. We took nothing but our salaries and were perfectly satisfied that way, but this afternoon a man called to see me—he was a detective employed by Braden's Western lawyers. That frightened us and we lost our heads. Oh, Anna, can't you understand that? We hadn't planned this all out. We just felt hounded into a corner and afraid that the worst interpretation would be put on everything we've done."

Some ring of truth in Buck's tones seemed to force its way into Anna's consciousness. She wanted suddenly to be gentle and kind to him—almost as if he were an erring little boy and she his mother. But she knew that she must not weaken—that if there were good inherent in him she must force him to bring it to the surface. There was still time for Buchanan Ryder to prove himself a man.

"If only you had told me," cried the girl.

PIMPLY? WELL, DON'T BE!

People Notice It! Drive Them Off With Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets.

A pimply face will not embarrass you much longer if you get a package of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights.

Cleanse the blood, the bowels and the liver with Olive Tablets.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are the successful substitute for calomel—there's never any sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

No one who takes Olive Tablets is ever cursed with "a dark brown taste," a bad breath, a dull, listless, "no good" feeling, constipated bowels, torpid liver, bad disposition or pimply face.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color.

Dr. Edward spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints, and Olive Tablets are the immediately effective result.

Take one or two nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

Resinol Soap

helps keep the hair healthy, lustrous and free from dandruff

For most people, whose scalps are in ordinarily good condition, and not seriously affected with dandruff, regular shampoos with Resinol Soap are enough to keep the hair healthy and the scalp clean. But if there is severe dandruff, itching or loss of hair, Resinol Ointment should be used in connection with the Resinol Soap shampoos until the trouble is under control.

Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment are sold by all druggists. For samples free, write to Dept. 2-P, Resinol, Baltimore, Md.

United States Prosperity No Longer Made in Europe--Spending Power of Nation Now Greatest in History--Never Before So Many Men Profitably Employed

COLE FOR ARMY OF AT LEAST 500,000 MEN

That the United States needs an effective mobile army of at least 500,000 men was declared by Adjutant-General Charles H. Cole at a house meeting in Concert Theatre, held to commemorate the birthday of Abraham Lincoln.

"Preparedness was the keynote of most of the addresses which were delivered by Senator Lodge, members of the Massachusetts House of Representatives, the Rev. E. A. Horton, Chaplain of the Massachusetts Adjutant-General Cole, John F. Moors, national committeeman from Massachusetts, T. A. R. and the boys of B. Business.

Adjutant-General Cole said: "We need an adequate army and must have an army; and we must have it at once.

"It has been estimated that any one of the great European powers and one great militia power could put more than 100,000 to more than 200,000 troops in this country within four weeks.

"To meet such an force we have 25,000 regular soldiers and 112,000 militiamen, of whom about perhaps 60,000 would be available.

"We should have an effective mobile army of at least 500,000 men, so that any force that could be sent here could be licked before it could do any damage.

"In the last two years we have had our eyes opened to the fact that any nation is in a position that must be prepared to do so that the days of unarmed peace no longer exist in this world of ours; that treaties are made not for peace but to be broken; that we are utterly unprepared to defend ourselves, and that in our whole existence as a nation we have had no fixed military policy worth the name.

"Yet there are many who believe that we are not in danger of war and never will be. But they are wrong. We must fight. But last we should some day share the fate of Belgium and Servia let us take steps now to prepare ourselves if the need should arise."

STOCKS and INVESTMENTS

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks were irregular in New York, a market leader in at the opening, with price changes so trifling small. Among exceptions were Mexican Petroleum, which lost 2½ higher, Cuban-American Sugar, preferred advancing 1½, Baldwin Locomotive, which gained 1½ and American Zinc, which sold at the highest record price of 78¾, up 1¾. Arbitrageurs it advised further. Butte & Superior did not show at a record high, but advanced 1¾ above which it sold at 74 3-8. Interborough-Metropolitan issues showed advance. Among initial declines were 7s to U. S. Steel common, which soon recovered most of the loss. Rails for the most part were heavy, with Canadian Pacific and Reading at new low records. Colorado Fuel and Iron also was prominent in the session. Railroad bonds were irregular. There was no change in sentiment, and with the public holding aloof and room traders taking a hand in the game, the market began with about the same aspects as on Friday.

PRICES REGARDED SOON.

The end of a half an hour the pace was ranging lower with copper and oils the only issues showing much strength as classes. Zincs were not holding all of their gains. There had been considerable bunching at the American Zinc and Butte & Superior earlier.

Sales in 1915 included American Smelting & Refining, 18,400 shares; Anaconda, 14,300; Baldwin Locomotive, 18,700; Central Leather, 11,700; Chesapeake & Ohio, 10,000; Consolidated Gas, 10,000; Crucible Steel, 10,000; Distillers' Securities, 10,000; General Motors, 10,000; Maxwell, 10,000; Republic Steel, 10,000; Southern Pacific, 10,000; Studebaker, 10,000; Union Pacific, 10,000; United States Steel, 10,000; Utah Copper, 10,000; Westinghouse Electric, 10,000; Willys-Overland, 10,000.

DEMAND FOR STEEL PRODUCTS.

The demand for steel products is unabated, and, according to the Iron Age, "the leading interests are not disposed to make concessions in settlement, and with the public holding aloof and room traders taking a hand in the game, the market began with about the same aspects as on Friday.

PRICES REGARDED SOON.

The end of a half an hour the pace was ranging lower with copper and oils the only issues showing much strength as classes. Zincs were not holding all of their gains. There had been considerable bunching at the American Zinc and Butte & Superior earlier.

LOOKING OUT FOR CUSTOMERS.

The U. S. Steel Corporation is trying to care for the interests of regular customers, and that is one reason why it is refusing to accept business which would tax its entire capacity all the year.

While it was said last week, "It booked all the business offered there would be nothing left for automobile companies, independent companies and regular customers when they entered the market for material.

It is because of this the Steel Corporation is forced to limit its acceptances.

ANNOUNCE THE REMOVAL OF THEIR OFFICES TO THE ABOVE ADDRESS

BOSTON AND MAINE RAILROAD

Boston, Mass., February 11, 1916.

To the Noteholders of the Boston and Maine Railroad:

You are asked to extend your notes to June 2, 1916, under the following terms:

ANY HOLDER OF NOTES MAY EXTEND THE TIME OF PAYMENT OF THE AMOUNT DUE THEREON TO JUNE 2, 1916, WITH INTEREST DISCOUNTED AT THE RATE OF 6% PER ANNUM.

A plan of consolidation has been formulated which has received the approval of the Directors of the Fitchburg Railroad Company, of the Boston and Lowell Railroad Corporation, and of this Company.

The Board of Directors of this Company has recommended to the favorable action of the Stockholders agreements for consolidation with, or purchase of, some or all of the lines leased to or operated by the Boston and Maine Railroad based upon the fundamental terms so approved.

Your security will not be in any way diminished by this extension, if granted, as no mortgage can be placed upon the property without securing your notes, and it will enable us to continue our efforts toward a sound reorganization under favorable conditions

Acceptance of this offer must be construed as conditional upon action by the Directors, not later than February 29, 1916, declaring the plan of extension effective.

Noteholders are requested to advise the Old Colony Trust Company, 17 Court Street, Boston, Massachusetts, before 2 p. m., Thursday, February 24, 1916, of their acceptance of the plan for extension, stating the numbers, including prefixes, denominations and dates of issue of the notes they hold. Noteholders will subsequently be asked to present their notes for extension.

By order Board of Directors,
J. H. HUSTIS,
President.

U. S. PROSPERITY INDEPENDENT OF THE WAR

By BOERSIANER.

Chicago, Feb. 14.—The world's best informed financier is an European. He is so well known in foreign financial circles and to certain bankers in this country that to give his name and location were superfluous to the knowing. From the public here his precise identification is withheld because of the intimacies which will be mentioned.

Broadest promoter, the shrewdest trader, the keenest banker, his versatility and democracy are boundless. To creed and class he is wholly indifferent. Authors, artists, specialists attract him more than financiers. Talent in whatever form or source invariably appeals to him. He encourages the society of men and women of intellect, to as frank in his talks with them as he is generous in his contributions to the needy among them, which includes army and navy men and diplomatists in all European countries.

MANY-SIDED MAN.

It is not, however, intellect in unspecialized guise that commands his sole attention. There is not a clever or an interesting adventurer with whom he is not familiar. No prime minister has such communications with all sorts and conditions of spies as this remarkable man of affairs. He holds remunerated relations with all the brilliant outcasts of Europe.

The catalogue of his acquaintance with the bright denizens of the underworld throws a curious light on those subterranean agencies of which the public knows so little but which at times exercise a great influence on public events.

He has traveled extensively; is a linguist in the physical as well as financially of a daring and adventurous disposition. These, with his vast wealth, have given him opportunities of becoming acquainted with extraordinary characters in and out of office and gaining their confidence. To all these sources he owes that knowledge of strange and hidden things as well as of higher things which is so useful to him and frequently confounds his opponents.

Nor is it easy, scarcely possible, to deceive him. Information volunteered him from so many and such contrary quarters that with his discrimination and experience he can almost instantly distinguish a fact from a fake.

SEES NO END TO WAR.

This eminent individual, so advantageously positioned, has communicated with his financial correspondents here. In the communication he stated, in effect, that the martial deadlock is hopeless. He cannot see the end of the war which, he says, is longed for years. Both Berlin and London are as unyielding today as they were six months ago. Call it what you will, stalemate or deadlock, this mutual resolve of pride to the tens of thousands of people of all classes.

Exporters and importers are handling the greatest volume of business ever recorded. Never yet things agoing on this continent.

And it goes without saying the fundamentally important group of capitalists is enjoying its share of the current record-breaking volume of business.

HIGH WAGES ARE PROMPTLY PUT INTO TRADE

By B. C. FORBES.

New York, Feb. 14.—The spending power of the United States today is the greatest in its history.

Here are some of the principal national groups and industries that are prospering and, as a consequence, spending far more than normal:

The agricultural community, the most important of all, never before waked so wealthy and never before spending so freely for the comforts as well as the necessities of life.

America never before had so many men profitably employed and most of the high wages paid labor is promptly converted into the channels of business.

The part saved and deposited or invested also acts as a stimulus to enterprise.

The railroads, the largest corporation spenders of all, are enjoying receivership-beating days, and as they have rigidly restricted outlays in the recent past, they are now placing urgent orders to enable them to cope with the traffic imposed upon them.

The steel industry, perhaps next in importance, is the capital goods handicraft boom and both employers and employes are earning and spending on an abnormal scale.

Mining, taken as a whole, is very prosperous, with stockholders and miners alike receiving unusual incomes—and doubtless spending correspondingly.

The great and growing oil industry, destined to fill even a larger place in the scheme of things in the future, is working at full capacity and receiving prices so high that the government suspects a conspiracy to rob consumers.

Automobile manufacturing, one of our giant, though youthful, industries, is expanding so rapidly that the consumer can't keep pace with it. Here also both the security holders and the workers are sharing in the phenomenal income.

The textile industry, of a remarkable seldom understood, is well employed, and merchants are confident that Spring trade will be heavy.

Building is reviving all over the country, with considerable leeway to make up.

The lumber trade, also of an important character, has already been revived from depression and unprofitable prices to prosperity and profitable prices.

The chemical business is expanding as never before, every resource, even to employment to much new capital and to additional labor.

Shipping yards are overflowing with vessels in the making, with famine prices the rule for tonnage and high wages the rule for labor.

The leather trade is benefiting enormously from overseas orders.

Munitions plants need only be mentioned; their prosperity has been and is spectacular.

Equipment companies, long inactive, are now coming into their own.

Our most notable infant industry, no longer an infant in size, the movies, has grown so that it is growing sensationally, affording employment to tens of thousands of people of all classes.

Exporters and importers are handling the greatest volume of business ever recorded. Never yet things agoing on this continent.

And it goes without saying the fundamentally important group of capitalists is enjoying its share of the current record-breaking volume of business.

Our prosperity is no longer "Made by Europe."

The Plan for Reorganizing the Boston & Maine Recommended by the Directors Is Better Than the Present Situation of the Stockholders.

FORMER CHIEF JUSTICE MARCUS P. KNOWLTON, chairman of the trustees who control the Boston & Maine Railroad, objects to the proposed plan of reorganization because it is, in his opinion, too favorable to the leased lines. He believes that the leased lines ought, not only to give up their right to their dividends from the Boston & Maine system as a FIXED CHARGE, but also to consent to a scaling down of this income.

Judge Knowlton's position is consistent and just to the common stockholders of the Boston & Maine. The AMERICAN has always been of the opinion that the leased lines ought to take something less than they are now receiving under their leases.

But the position of Mr. French and Mr. Crooker, counsel for some of the minority stockholders, is not clear. They apparently are opposed to receivership by which the relations of the leased lines to the Boston & Maine system could be readjusted, but they are also opposed to the alternative plan agreed upon by the directors of the Boston & Maine and the principal leased lines, by which the leased lines shall come into the reorganized system, giving up the fixed rights under their leases and taking contingent rights as stockholders in the reorganized system.

If the gentlemen representing the minority stockholders were to stand with Judge Knowlton, there would seem to be some consistency in their position, but since they do not believe in receivership to force a reorganization, their opposition to the alternative plan is inexplicable. What possible doubt can there be that the proposed reorganization under the new plan is better for the common stockholders of the Boston & Maine than the present situation of that system?

Last week the gentlemen representing this group of minority stockholders declared that there was a deliberate conspiracy on the part of financial interests in State Street to freeze out the common stockholders of the Boston & Maine by a large assessment under a plan of reorganization. And on that assumption they have asked the Legislature to grant State aid to avoid the necessity of a receivership and of an assessment so large as to force the common stockholders to sell their stock at a sacrifice who are not able to pay a large assessment.

Under such circumstances the AMERICAN last week approved in this editorial column the proposal for lending it the State's credit, if it could be shown that the Boston & Maine could meet its obligations otherwise. Now, however, it appears that, whatever may have been the scheme of State Street interests to "freeze out" the common stockholders, their final plan is not to do so. The plan now adopted provides for an assessment of only $5 and actually also provides for means by which the common stockholders who are not able to pay the assessment may borrow the money for the purpose from the underwriting committee, pledging their stock as security therefor. Nothing could be more unlike an oppressive scheme than this proposal. No stockholder, if we understand the plan, can possibly complain that his holding is jeopardized or that this even remotely resembles a "freeze-out."

On the contrary, while there is no feature in the plan oppressive to the common stockholders of the Boston & Maine, there is a very great advantage to them in the plan of reorganization, for it will reconstruct upon a sound basis the financial structure of the railroad. It will change the interest of the stockholders of the leased lines from a fixed charge upon the Boston & Maine system, which must be paid every year, whether the earnings justify it or do not, and must be paid not only by the divergence of all the dividends from the Boston & Maine common stockholders, but by borrowing money at expensive rates of interest whenever all the earnings of the Boston & Maine system in any bad year are not sufficient to pay these fixed charges.

Borrowing money to pay what practically is a dividend is the worst kind of business and always tends to put a railroad in the power of strangers who happen to be its creditors because they have advanced the money to pay these stockholders of the leased lines. In bad years the railroad is always in danger of receivership; its credit is never good and its stock can never return to normal value while men of financial intelligence know the instability of the financial structure of the railroad which this stock represents.

By all means, the proposed plan is better than the present situation of the Boston & Maine. It cannot be consistently opposed in the interests of the common stockholders unless, along the lines of Judge Knowlton's dissenting opinion, it is to obtain, under receivership and its hazards, a reduction in the charges of the leased lines.

In the present situation of the Boston & Maine the stockholders of the Boston & Maine are obliged to pay the leased line stockholders just as much as they would be obliged to pay them under the reorganization plan. But, under the reorganization plan they would not be obliged to borrow money at high rates of interest to pay these leased line stockholders in hard times, when the road is not earning enough to pay the leased lines out of earnings. This is a very great difference in favor of the common stockholders of the Boston & Maine.

Many Good Reasons for Eating Oysters

Their Great Nutritive Qualities, Digestibility and Cheapness Make Them Ideal Diet for All Classes of People —Probably First Animal Food Eaten by Primitive Man

By Garrett P. Serviss

IN these days of costly living it is good to be told that the price of oysters has not risen, for oysters are among the most nutritious and easily digestible of animal foods for man. The Bureau of Fisheries is authority for the statement that the oyster "is more nearly than most foods self-sufficient as a diet." Moreover, it has a reputation as a "brain food," which probably arises from its ready digestibility, because whatever enables the bodily machine to run strongly and easily necessarily steadies and stimulates the action of the brain cells. "It is remarkable among ordinary food substances," says the same authority, "in its high proportion of glycogen, a substance resembling starch, but more readily and easily assimilated, and, unlike starch, wholly digestible even when uncooked."

There you have the explanation of the great popularity of raw oysters, which is also due, of course, to their delicious and altogether inimitable flavor when properly seasoned. Once in a while you meet a person who doesn't like oysters, but such persons are rare and usually convertible. Some persons learn to like tobacco, by repeated trial. The cryptic charm is as beneficent in the one case as it is maleficent in the other.

Guaranteed as Wholesome as Milk and Many Common Raw Foods

It is also good to be assured by official authority that "it can be said that oysters are today more sanitary and better than ever, and that there is, at least, as sufficient a guarantee of their wholesomeness as there is of milk, strawberries, lettuce, celery and other foods not usually cooked for consumption."

For the cheer of those who like oysters, but are afraid of possible pollution, it is added that "if the oysters be cooked there is a double guarantee," which I take to mean that when cooked the oyster is altogether harmless, and no less nutritious. A steaming oyster stew, made by a competent cook, is certainly a terrestrial ambrosia, which diffuses a delicious sense of comfort through the whole body as nothing else can do. Every organ and function feels the genial influence.

High authority avers that the oyster needs the ordinary ingredients used in cooking—starches and fats—to give it balance. It may be so, but, personally, I find no lack of "balance" in the raw oyster. My mouth waters at the recollection of the raw oysters from a can which I used to eat when a boy in the country, where oysters in the shell were not to be had. But a strong argument in favor of cooking is that, by the addition of a few inexpensive ingredients, a dish of cooked oysters, whether broiled, stewed, creamed, sherried, fricasseed, or otherwise prepared, makes a more satisfying meal than the same number of raw oysters would do. Reference to such a source of culinary science as Good Housekeeping Magazine will show in what a vast variety of ways oysters may be prepared for eating.

Externally hardly anything could appear more unpromising from the viewpoint of a hungry man than an oyster, particularly while it is still in its shell. It would be interesting to know what circumstance, or accident, first led primitive man to try the taste of an oyster. Probably some starving savage happened to break a shell, and, seeing the juicy contents, swallowed them as a desperate experiment.

It is easy to picture his amazed delight over the savory morsel, even though he had no salt, pepper or vinegar to bring out its best flavor, and what a sensation his discovery must have made when he communicated it to his skin-clad fellows! How well they liked it is sufficiently indicated by the immense heaps of oyster and other bivalve shells, called "kitchen middens," which prehistoric man left on the seashore of Scandinavia and elsewhere. It is no exaggeration to say that oysters were almost the first animal food that man ever tasted.

In Infancy Oyster Lives Without Shell and Swims About in Water

It is safe to wager that not one in a hundred persons who eat oysters with great gusto knows that an oyster in its infancy lives without a shell, and swims about in the water, although it is never a speeder. In this larval state the embryo oyster is furnished with little bristles with which it rows itself along, or keeps suspended in a current. After a short time a shell begins to form, and the weight of this, as it grows, brings the creature down to the bottom, where it fixes itself upon some solid object, preferably a rock.

The vast majority of the little oysters are swallowed up and smothered by drifting sand and mud, but a few survive out of the millions that are born from the eggs of a single female. When the little oysters first become attached in colonies to the bottom they are called "spat." When they get large enough to be transported to other places where they may finish their growth, they are called "seed oysters." There is a good deal to be learned about an oyster besides the way to eat it.

His Valentine

By Jane McLean

I PLEDGE you, dwellers in my humble heart,
Thick-rimmed with frost for all the world to see,
Today I know whereof you are a part,
And hail you as the greater part of me.

My heart once seemed indeed an humble place
Until the god of love took refuge there,
And filled it with a wonder-woman's face,
With lips of flame and rings of sunny hair.

So, heart of me, I am supremely blessed
In knowing that the things you hold are mine—
That life has chosen of all gifts the best
To give to me as her great valentine.

The Action of Messrs. Gardner, Washburn, Bird and Cushing Is Clean and Honest Politics

THE announcement of Messrs. Gardner, Washburn, Bird and Cushing that they propose to offer themselves as delegates pledged to Roosevelt as President in the Republican primaries is clean and honest politics.

The most undemocratic and unrepresentative thing in American politics has been the practice of sending unpledged delegates to conventions to nominate candidates for public office. The citizens vote for delegates whom they do not know and whose intentions are not known. These unpledged delegates proceed to a distant city, hold a convention and nominate any man THEY please. The opposing party goes through the same farcical process, and their unpledged delegates also proceed to a distant city and nominate any candidate THEY PLEASE, and the people MUST choose between THESE TWO men, out of one hundred million Americans. This makes a government by a few politicians and not by the people.

On the other hand, when delegates are pledged the people do participate in the choice of delegates for office and thereby participate in the election of their President. Unpledged delegates, except in extraordinary situations, should not be tolerated in American politics.

The Game of Marriage

Present Mania for Outdoor Sports Is Not Only Giving Women Stronger Muscles, But It Is Teaching Them to Play the Game of Life Squarely and Accept Its Results Without Whining, Says Dorothy Dix.

By Dorothy Dix

THE great thing that the present mania for outdoor sports is doing for women is not so much in giving them stronger muscle as it is in giving them stronger mental and moral fibre. And its crowning blessing is that it is teaching them how to play the game of life squarely, and accept its results without whining.

Women are not sports by nature. They like to gamble, but they want to do it without risk, and when they lose they howl to heaven. They cannot understand why you cannot have your cake and eat it, too, nor why one should stick to the bad bargain one has made.

One of the chief reasons that there are so many divorces is because women are so lacking in the sportsmanlike spirit. A girl will deliberately marry a man knowing him to be a drunkard, and then divorce him because he drinks, which is manifestly both absurd and unjust. Or, a girl will marry a poor young man and make his life a torment by her continual complaints because she can't have the clothes and jewels and automobiles of a millionaire's wife.

What They Should Do

If these women had a drop of sporting blood in their veins they would accept with philosophy the fates they had brought upon themselves. The drunkard's wife would meet her intemperate spouse with a red rose in her hair and a smile on her lips when he came reeling home at 3 a. m., and spend the balance of the night applying ice cloths to his fevered brow. The poor man's wife would be strong for the love-in-a-cottage stuff, and simply flaunt her hand-me-downs in the face of her little world.

Indeed, to do anything else is for the woman to stultify herself, and give the husband a crooked deal, for he, poor man, was under the impression that his wife knew what she was getting when she married him, and that he represented her choice in life partners.

This spirit of the tin horn sport is also abundantly manifested in the way that so many women perform their obligations to their families. They do their duty, but they do it with groanings and complaints that make their ministrations hard to endure.

How many a housekeeper do you know whose abode is immaculately clean, whose food is always delicously cooked, whose thrift is a marvel, yet who makes her home worse than a place of pestilence because she is always complaining about what a slave she is, and how hard she has to toil?

How many a wife do you know who really does do her wifely duty to her husband to the last button on his shirt, but who robs it of all flavor by continually reminding him of the sacrifices she makes for him, and the work she does for him?

Self-Advertised Martyrs

How many mothers do you know who do devote themselves to their children, who toil and economize that their girls may have good clothes, and their boys go to college, but who never weary of bemoaning the hardships of a mother's lot, and telling what martyrs they are to their children?

These women can never understand why they are not honored for having done their duty by their families, and loved for the sacrifices they have made. It is because they have not played the game in a sportsmanlike manner. They haven't taken the loss, along with the gain, with an even mind.

There is a gambling maxim which says, "Put up, or shut up," to the bluffer. To women might be added this further admonition: If you are going to do your duty, be a sport. Do it without whining.

Once-Overs

How foolish for you to permit some little, trivial matter to arouse you to such an extent in the morning that you are unstrung for the entire day.

Perhaps a little "difference" at breakfast is responsible for your losing a full day's enjoyment.

Decidedly silly, is it not?

Allowing yourself to be "crabbed" in the morning is a habit. It is another something which grows, if you permit it to do so.

Instead of being ready to pick up something which does not just suit you as a pretext for complaint, why not resolve to overlook things which are not just pleasing to you?

Turn over a new leaf, tomorrow morning; resolve to be amiable.

Do not just resolve either, but stick to your purpose.

Perhaps your life partner may start something unpleasant. But don't retaliate. You'll find the result will be worth all the effort. You will be surprised at how much brighter the whole day will be.
